COMMISSIONERS TO HEAR APPEALS ON TAX LEVIES

The Adams county commissioners have set 13 dates on which they will sit in the court house and at various other points in the county between 10 a. m. and 3 p. m. as a board of tax revision to hear appeals from valuations fixed by the district assessors.

The members of the board will determine whether any of the valuations made by the assessors have been made above or below a just rate according to state laws covering assessments. Appeals will be heard on rates which have been sent to the taxpayers as the final assessment.

Figures fixed this year will stand until 1942 except for alterations in line with property destruction or improvements.

The board will sit during the designated hours at the following times and places to hear appeals from indicated districts:

November 27 at the commissioners' office in the court house for appeals from Mt. Joy, Freedom, Highland and Cumberland townships.

November 29 at the Altland house in Abbottstown for appeals from Abbottstown, Hamilton and Berwick townships.

December 1 at Taylor's restaurant in Bendersville for appeals from Bendersville, York and Mendenhall townships.

December 4 at the Hoover house in East Berlin for that borough and Reading township.

December 6 at the Manson house in Fairfield for that borough and Liberty and Hamilton townships.

December 8 at the commissioners' office in the court house for the three wards of Gettysburg.

December 11 at the Biglerville hotel for Arendtsville and Biglerville boroughs and Butler township.

December 13 at Schott's restaurant in Littlestown both wards of Littlestown and Union and German townships.

December 15 at the fire engine house in McSherrystown for both wards and Conewago township.

December 18 at the Hotel-Oxford in New Oxford for that borough and Oxford township.

December 20 at the commissioners' office for Mt. Pleasant township and Straban township.

December 23 at the fire engine house in York Springs for that borough and Tyrone, Latimore and Huntingdon townships.

December 27 at the election house in Cashtown for Franklin township.

Daughter Is Born to Mr. and Mrs. Peduzzi

Announcements were received in Gettysburg today of the birth of a daughter to Mr. and Mrs. Carl J. Peduzzi, Mount Union.

The new baby weighs eight pounds one and one-half ounces and has been named Teresa Anne. Mrs. Peduzzi is said to be doing nicely in the Altoona hospital.

Mr. Peduzzi, owner of a large confectionery store in Mount Union, was for many years assistant manager of the Hotel Gettysburg. He is a graduate of Gettysburg college and was a star basketball player for three years.

Mrs. Peduzzi was formerly Miss Josephine A. Racasi, of Tyrone. The couple was married on Thanksgiving Day, 1937.

THANKSGIVING MART TO BE HELD ON WEDNESDAY

A special Thanksgiving market session will be held next Wednesday morning at the market house in the Farmers' market house this morning. The regular Tuesday session will be omitted.

Some of the hawkers indicated they favor another special market on the following Wednesday for the benefit of those who will observe the "old-fashioned Thanksgiving" on November 30. Some of the farmers in attendance made it clear that November 30 will be Thanksgiving Day for them.

There was only mild interest at market today in turkeys which have been selling for weeks at the same price as dressed chickens—35 cents a pound. Prices for live turkeys were listed at 22 and 25 cents a pound. Ducks were bringing 35 cents a pound dressed and 18 cents live-weight.

Egg prices strengthened this morning and ranged from 32 to 36 cents a dozen.

Pork prices showed no change. Apples were plentiful with $1 per bushel. The highest price asked for potatoes brought $1.25 a bushel. Cabbage ranged from three to 15 cents a head. Dried sweet apples brought 15 cents a quart box.

Turnips, sweet potatoes, hickory nuts, black walnuts, persimmons, apple butter and cider were offered at regular prices.

Mrs. Seilhamer Visits Gettysburg Relatives

Mrs. Grace Seilhamer, Jamaica, Long Island, is visiting her nephew and his wife Mr. and Mrs. Robert Deardoff, 113 Chambersburg street.

Mrs. Seilhamer, an employee of the Long Island railroad is recuperating from a nervous breakdown she suffered several months ago. She is a ticket agent for the Long Island railroad and recalls selling the last mileage book purchased by President Theodore Roosevelt about two weeks before his death.

Mrs. Seilhamer was at one time employed as a typewriter on The Progress, first daily newspaper published in Gettysburg. She left Gettysburg in 1904, returned for a visit in 1909 and did not return until last year. This is her third visit here since leaving 35 years ago.

DATE SET FOR MUSIC FESTIVAL

The annual music festival sponsored by the Adams County Christian Endeavor Union will be held this year in the St. Paul's Lutheran church, Biglerville, the Rev. Henry Sternat pastor, on Thursday evening, December 14, at 7:45 o'clock.

The festival of music promises to be of unusual interest this year. Musical numbers will be presented by talented individuals from various sections of the county by voice and on wind and string instruments and the pipe organ.

Outstanding vocalists of this section are being invited to participate, according to the plans of the music festival committee of the county union headed by the Rev. Lester M. Utz, chairman, York Springs. The other members of the committee are Miss Myrtle Raffensberger, Biglerville, Miss Mildred Coshun, Gettysburg R. D.; Charles Lott, Fairfield, and Miss Martha Furney, Gettysburg.

It is expected that all the Christian Endeavor Societies of the county will participate.

JURY INDICTS 8 AND INSPECTS 3 BUILDINGS

The November grand jury completed its work for the current session of court on Friday afternoon when it returned six true bills of indictment and conducted a routine inspection of the county home, jail and court house.

Maurice Bechtel, Littlestown, charged with drunken driving by Chief of Police H. S. Roberts, of Littlestown was indicted and a malicious mischief charge against E. A. Fisher by Burgess Evan A. Appeler of Littlestown, also was sustained.

Other true bills were against the following:

Melvin and Alma Herman, Abbottstown, larceny of household goods from James Shultz Franklin township.

John M. Davis Harrisburg charged by E. H. Markley Gettysburg, with false pretense and making a check with intent to defraud.

David K. Knode and William Eversole both of Hagerstown, Maryland charged by Borough Officer Charles W. Culp with larceny.

The afternoon's work brought to eight the total number of indictments reported for the November session.

Returning from their inspection of the county buildings, members of the jury presented an oral report to Judge W. C. Sheely in which they reported "everything in pretty good shape" but recommended a separate heating plant for the administration building at the county home.

One of the six women on the jury thought there should be more air and light in the cell block at the county jail, suggesting that the windows be enlarged.

Another suggestion was that a central heating plant for all the buildings at the county home be installed. The court explained that the commissioners of Adams county have been planning extensive improvements at the county home for some time in the future and have been guarding against making repairs now that would be duplicated in improvements that may be undertaken within a few years.

The court promised that the jury's recommendations should come to the attention of the county commissioners. The jurors were dismissed and paid.

The county's goal is 2,000 members and $3,000. Completion of the roll call in this county has been asked by next Thursday, Thanksgiving Day.

Fife and Drum Corps To March Here Today

Complete arrangements for the observance of the 76th anniversary of the National cemetery dedication to be conducted this afternoon by the Gettysburg Sons of Veterans were announced at a regular camp meeting Friday evening in the former G. A. R. post room on East Middle street.

Several companies of 6th regiment Sons of Veterans Reserves and fife and drum field music from Harrisburg will march in the column to move from the post room at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon. It was announced. The Rev. Dr. Joseph B. Baker, York will be the speaker.

The meeting was well attended. Only routine business was conducted with Commander H. G. Deatrick presiding.

U. S. Takes Up British Fruit Ban

Washington Nov 18 (AP)—Sumner Wells, acting secretary of State, said Friday the American embassy in London was discussing with the British government the question of continuing British purchases of American fruits.

Great Britain recently issued restrictions on the importation of fruits.

Wells had no comment to make on reports that the United States had asked Britain and France to permit continuance of normal trade between the United States and European neutrals.

GERMANS HOLD SWEDISH CARGO

Berlin Nov 18 (AP)—Authorized sources said today the Swedish steamer Valparaiso seized by the German navy with her cargo of newsprint would be held by Germany until officials were fully satisfied the ship was really going to South America.

(Lima, Peru, agents of the 3,759-ton Swedish steamer reported the ship was seized Friday and taken to a German port for examination. The Valparaiso sailed from Gothenburg, Sweden, October 15.)

(Capture of the ship caused concern in South American publishing circles. The agents said she was destined for Peru, Chile and other neutral countries on the western coast where newsprint supplies were low.)

Meanwhile Berlin official sources renewed discussion of the case involving the American ship City of Flint, captured by Germany and later released by asserting that the Stockholm newspaper Tidningen had reported the American sailor on whose account the German prize crew entered Haugabund, Norway, lies critically ill in a Bergen hospital.

FIRE IN CENTER SQUARE

The Gettysburg fire company was called out shortly after 9 o'clock Friday evening to put out a bonfire started in center square by Gettysburg college freshmen who staged a pajama parade that led from the campus to the center of town. Later in the evening a borough truck removed the debris from the street.

TO DISPLAY PHOTOGRAPHS

Paul Kinsey, branch manager of the Metropolitan Edison company will be the guest speaker at the weekly meeting of the Gettysburg Lions club on Monday evening at 6 o'clock at Mrs. Smith's restaurant. Mr. Kinsey has had considerable experience as a photographer and exhibitor of photographic art and will tell the clubmen of some of his experiences and show some of his own pictures.

Westminster Woman Hurt in Accident

Several pigs crossing the Gettysburg-Littlestown highway were indirectly responsible for an automobile accident on Friday afternoon about 4 o'clock in which Mrs. Merle Correll, 39, 23 Park avenue, Westminster, Maryland, suffered a fracture of the right knee cap and bruise burns. The accident occurred about a mile south of Two Taverns.

Ford A. Correll, Westminster, and his wife were following another car when the machine ahead stopped suddenly because of a herd of pigs being driven across the road ahead. The Correll car struck the rear of the other machine and Mrs. Correll was thrown forward against the front of the car. She is a patient in the Warner hospital.

The first car was operated by Earl F. Jeffcoat, 23, Gettysburg R. 1. He was uninjured but both cars were considerably damaged. Officer G. R. Waggoner of the Gettysburg detail of the state motor police investigated.

COUNTY NATIVE VICTIM OF FIRE NEAR HANOVER

George A. Wallick Grove, aged 32 years native of Littlestown R. 2 was burned to death in a fire that destroyed a barn and garage and damaged the house on his 15-acre farm in Heidelberg township York county, three miles east of Hanover, Friday evening at 6 o'clock.

Mr. Grove lived on the farm the last two years and served as an agent for the York Farm bureau, an organization which furnishes supplies to farmers on a co-operative basis. A large tank-truck loaded with hundreds of gallons of gasoline and kerosene was stored in the barn. It is believed that the contents exploded and that the flames enveloped him before he could escape.

The body was lying directly back of the truck near the door of the barn. Firemen were able to remove it only after the flames were under control, about one and one-half hours after the fire started.

Mr. Grove had gone to the barn to feed the livestock. A 10-year-old son, Charles, looked out of the window and saw that the entire barn was apparently in flames. He told his mother of the fire. She had spoken to her husband only two minutes before, it was said.

Mrs. Grove made a frantic search (Continued on Page Two)

ARENDTSTVILLE CHURCH MEETING

A special congregational meeting was held by the Zion Evangelical Reformed church, Arendtsville, Friday evening in the auditorium of the Arendtsville vocational school. The meeting was held for the purpose of launching the annual Kingdom roll call. One hundred and twenty persons attended.

The service of worship was followed by the showing of a set of stereoscopic slides illustrative of the theme, "Building Together." The pictures were descriptive of the work of the Evangelical Reformed church at home and abroad. The lecture accompanying the pictures was given by the pastor, the Rev. Ernest W. Brindle.

The report of the budget committee was presented by A. Dale Knouse, chairman. The other members of the committee were Ernest E. Wishard and Paul Rinehart. Pending adoption of the report by the congregation opportunity for questions and discussion concerning the various items was given.

The younger children enjoyed games in another part of the building during the business period of the congregational meeting. Mrs. E. W. Brindle supervised this play period.

The final part of the program was given over to fellowship and refreshments. This was under the direction of Mrs. Eva Rexroth and the following committee: Mrs. A. R. Heckenluber, Mrs. Elizabeth Mark, Mrs. Paul Beamer, Mrs. Marshall Longenecker, Mrs. A. Dale Knouse and Mrs. Ernest E. Wishard.

DRIVER GETS 30 DAYS; SUPPORT HEARINGS HELD

A hit-and-run driver who had paid for the damage he caused and then thrown himself upon the mercy of the court was sentenced by Judge W. C. Sheely in Adams county court here on Friday afternoon.

Charles E. Bowser, Abbottstown, who was arrested by a state motor policeman from the local substation on May 12 for failing to stop at the scene of an accident in which he had been involved on the Lincoln highway near Cross Keys drew a 30 day sentence in the county jail and was ordered to pay the costs.

No one was injured in the accident in which he was involved and Bowser told the court that he had paid for the damage he did to the other car. He entered a plea of "no defense to the hit-and-run count."

Non-Support Hearings

Hearings were held in a number of non-support cases and other pending actions during the afternoon.

Elvin Rehm, Butler township, was found guilty of a charge of surety of the peace and was ordered to enter into his own recognizance in the amount of $300 and to have the costs of his case paid by Saturday of next week. His wife, Jean Rehm brought the charge.

Lloyd Kemper, York, formerly of York Springs, was ordered to pay $5 weekly to his wife on a non-support bond. He must post a $300 bond and pay the costs of the case; also. He was ordered to report to the court in January.

William R. Orndorff, Hanover R. D., failed to appear before the court on a desertion charge and a process was issued for his arrest.

Raymond Smith, Gardners R. D., who entered a plea of guilty to one degree of a serious count filed against him by Mary Jean Jeffries must pay hospital and doctor bills of the prosecutrix and make weekly payments of $150. He also must post a $500 bond to insure compliance with the court order.

Charge Dropped

Cornelius Orlena, colored former C. C. enrollee, was released under $300 bond on condition that he make weekly payment on the costs of a case in which he was charged with taking an automobile.

The court granted the petition of the district attorney to drop prosecution of a charge of surety of the peace against Elsie Routson, Tyrore township.

Robert Rummel Biglerville drew a weekly order of $4 on a support charge.

Legion Will Show Chicago Pictures

Notices of the regular meeting of the Albert J. Lentz post No. 202 of the American Legion on Monday evening announce the showing of a 70-minute motion picture of the national Legion convention at Chicago.

The showing will take place after the regular business meeting which will be brief. The picture will begin at about 8:15 o'clock.

Legionnaires and their wives, auxiliary members, Sons of the Legion and all county veterans and their families are invited to be present for the showing. There will be no admission charge.

WARNS CANNERS NOT TO DEPEND ON WAR 'BOOM'

York, Pa., Nov 18 (AP)—A warning against expanding production to meet expected war-stimulated increases in business was left today with the Pennsylvania Canners' association.

"The only hope for better business in the canning industry is a better domestic demand," Walter L. Graefe, Griffin, Georgia, president of the National Canners association, told the Pennsylvania group Friday night at a banquet concluding their annual convention.

The association adopted a resolution pledging full support to two new state agencies, the Department of Commerce and the job mobilization committee.

These organizations, the resolution said, "provide for constructive endeavor to the end of re-establishing Pennsylvania's proper place in industry and to lessen the relief burden of the Pennsylvania taxpayers."

Lieut. Gov. Samuel S. Lewis, Secretary of Agriculture John H. Light and Deputy Secretary Mark S. James of the Commerce Department, attended the banquet.

PLEADS GUILTY IN AUTO DEATH

Myles R. Welkert 29, Littlestown, signed a plea of guilty this morning to a charge of hit-and-run driving in the death of Robert J. Smith Gettysburg, whose body was found along the Littlestown highway a half mile south of here at dawn on October 6.

At the same time District Attorney John P. Rutliff announced that the manslaughter count against Welkert will be dropped.

Welkert will appear in court next Saturday for sentence, his attorney, Richard A. Brown Esq., said today. The maximum sentence for hit-and-run driving is one to three years and a $200 fine or both.

Corporal J. G. Warren, of the state motor police who arrested Welkert after following a single clue—fragments of a headlight lens—was the prosecutor in the case.

3 Drivers Charged With Speeding

An airplane pilot whose ground speed by automobile on Friday approached speeds to which he was accustomed in the air was arrested by a state motor policeman from Gettysburg on a charge of driving at 65 miles an hour. The operator, Lawrence Sutton Semans, Uniontown, will be charged before Justice of the Peace Gerald Orndorff, Oxford township.

Two other speeders were nabbed by the same officer on Friday. Clarence Manchester, Milwaukee, Wisconsin paid a $10 fine and the costs to Justice of the Peace William D. Brown, Huntingdon, for driving at 65 miles an hour. Fred Oswald Philadelphia will be accused before Justice Brown of driving at 60 miles an hour.

NAZIS FIRE ON DUTCH PLANES

The Hague, Nov 18 (AP)—The government announced today that two German flying boats had appeared over Holland and one had fired at Netherlands planes which attacked it.

Apparently neither the German nor the Netherlands planes were damaged.

The German aircraft were sighted over the island of Vlieland off the northern coast. Both headed back toward Germany after the encounter.

The government said it had protested against the violation of Holland's neutrality and the shooting at Netherlands planes over their own territory.

JOHN H. PAPE, 49, FRUIT GROWER AND GARAGEMAN, DIES SUDDENLY

John H. Pape, 49, fruit grower and garageman, died suddenly Friday evening at 9:40 o'clock at his home, 395 Buford avenue, from a heart attack.

He had suffered from a heart condition for the last three years and had a light attack last Sunday. He had been confined to his home for the greater part of the time this week but on Friday morning had visited his fruit farm in Huntingdon township.

Mr. Pape was stricken about 7:15 o'clock Friday evening a short time after he had gone to the second floor of his home after the evening meal. A physician was called but death followed about two hours later.

Townson Native

The deceased was a native of Townson, Maryland, and came to Gettysburg for the first time in 1913 and was employed as a mechanic by the late D. J. Forney at the National garage until 1917. In 1918 he went to Pikesville, Maryland, and conducted a garage business of his own until 1922 when he returned to Gettysburg and purchased what was then the Gettysburg Sales and Service at York and South Stratton streets.

In 1927 Mr. Pape purchased the Chevrolet agency in Chambersburg and

The November grand jury completed its work for the current session of court on Friday afternoon when it returned six true bills of indictment and conducted a routine inspection of the county home, jail and court house.

Maurice Bechtel, Littlestown, charged with drunken driving by Chief of Police H. S. Roberts, of Littlestown, was indicted and a malicious mischief charge against E. A. Fisher by Burgess Evan A. Appier of Littlestown, also was sustained.

Other True Bills

The other true bills were against the following:

Melvin and Alma Herman, Abbottstown, larceny of household goods from James Shultz, Franklin township.

John M. Davis, Harrisburg, charged by E. H. Markley, Gettysburg, with false pretense and making a check with intent to defraud.

David K. Knode and William Eversole, both of Hagerstown, Maryland, charged by Borough Officer Charles W. Culp with larceny.

The afternoon's work brought to eight the total number of indictments reported for the November session.

Returning from their inspection of the county buildings, members of the jury presented an oral report to Judge W. C. Sheely in which they reported "everything in pretty good shape" but recommended a separate heating plant for the administration building at the county home.

One of the six women on the jury thought there should be more air and light in the cell block at the county jail, suggesting that the windows be enlarged.

Another suggestion was that a central heating plant for all the buildings at the county home be installed. The court explained that the commissioners of Adams county have been planning extensive improvements at the county home for some time in the future and have been guarding against making repairs now that would be duplicated in improvements that may be undertaken within a few years.

The court promised that the jury's recommendations should come to the attention of the county commissioners. The jurors were dismissed and paid.

TWO TAVERNS BANQUET HELD

One hundred and twelve fathers and sons attended their fourth annual banquet Friday evening at the social hall of Grace Lutheran church, Two Taverns. A turkey dinner was served.

The pastor of the church, the Rev. Dr. J. M. Myers, was the toastmaster. The Rev. J. W. Harner, of the Lutheran Theological seminary here, gave the invocation and group singing was led by Miss Viola Sachs with Mrs. Mervin Welkert as accompanist.

The toast "to our sons" was given by C. C. Little and Junior Miller responded. The principal address was delivered by the Rev. Alton M. Motter, a son of Grace Lutheran congregation who is now the pastor of Redeemer's Lutheran church at Harrisburg.

There were brief remarks by the Rev. A. P. Frantz, Hoffman orphanage; Charles Welkert, Littlestown, and the Rev. Mr. Harner. The banquet room was decorated with fall flowers.

The program committee for the affair included B. B. Bowers, Granville Miller and Lloyd R. Reaver. Entertainment was arranged by C. Glenn Reaver, C. D. Trostle and Willis Waybright. Mrs. Clarence Myers was dining room chairman and the banquet was prepared by women under the direction of Mrs. Lloyd Reaver and Dennis Hartlaub.

Hospital Report

Margaret Scott, Gettysburg R. D., submitted to an operation at the Warner hospital this morning for the removal of her tonsils.

Eugene Haas, Hanover, a student at Gettysburg college, received treatment at the hospital Friday evening for a laceration about his left eyebrow. He was injured while playing ball.

Lester Leader, Loganville, an employee of the Adams Transit company, was X-rayed Friday evening for an injury to his left ankle and leg.

Ethel Stouter, Emmitsburg, and Bernard Riley, Gettysburg R. D., have been admitted as patients. Discharges today include Mrs. John W. Arnsberger and infant son, Ronald Leroy, Biglerville R. 2; Harry Wolf, Bendersville, and Mrs. Carl Simpson and infant daughter, Wilda Ruth, Gettysburg R. 5.

319 Join Red Cross After Week of Roll Call

At the end of the first week of the 1939 Red Cross roll call in Adams county, chapter officials reported 319 members enrolled and a total of $768 collected in memberships and other contributions.

The county's goal is 2,000 members and $3,000. Completion of the roll call in this county has been asked by next Thursday, Thanksgiving Day.

Fife and Drum Corps To March Here Today

Complete arrangements for the observance of the 76th anniversary of the National cemetery dedication to be conducted this afternoon by the Gettysburg Sons of Veterans were announced at a regular camp meeting Friday evening in the former G. A. R. post room on East Middle street.

Several companies of 6th regiment Sons of Veterans Reserves and fife and drum field music from Harrisburg will march in the column to move from the post room at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon, it was announced. The Rev. Dr. Joseph B. Baker, York, will be the speaker.

The meeting was well attended. Only routine business was conducted with Commander H. G. Deatrick presiding.

EX-SOLDIER IS DEAD; AGED 38

George Elmer Baumgardner, 38, Fairfield, died Friday evening at 6 o'clock in the Warner hospital from a complication of diseases.

He was a native of Adams county, a son of Mrs. Elmer (Barnhart), Baumgardner, Fairfield, and the late Elmer Baumgardner, and was a member of Zion Lutheran church, Fairfield. He served with the United States Army in the Hawaiian islands for three years and received his discharge about 15 years ago.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Phoebe Baumgardner; his mother; three children, George, Jr., Mary Irene and James Elias, all at home; five sisters, Mrs. Joseph Shook, Hagerstown; Mrs. Emerson Barriett and Mrs. Peter Anderson, both of New York city; Mrs. Nevin Trimmer, Biglerville R. 1, and Miss Clara Baumgardner, Fairfield R. 1; four brothers, Frank, Walla Walla, Washington; Sam, Denver, Colorado; William, Fairfield R. D., and Preston, Fairfield R. D.

Funeral services from the Hampton Lutheran church Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock conducted by the Rev. Kenneth James. Interment in the adjoining cemetery.

The body will lie in state at the church Monday from 9 a. m. until the time of the funeral.

MAKE PLANS FOR BIBLE SUNDAY

The executive committee of the Gettysburg Bible society held a meeting in the Y. W. C. A. building Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Seven of the eight members were present. Mrs. H. E. Berkey, the president, presided.

Plans were made for the observance of Universal Bible Sunday on December 10.

It is hoped that all churches represented by the committee, as well as other congregations of the community, will participate by presenting programs that emphasize the great value of the Bible and its teachings, as being the only solution of the world's present chaotic condition, the committee members said.

The Gettysburg society was organized in November, 1846, and now is 93 years old. It is suggested that a free-will offering from each cooperating congregation would be a very acceptable birthday gift to the work of the American Bible society, of which the local society is an auxiliary.

Nazis Execute 12 in Prague

Prague, Nov. 18 (AP)—Three more Czechs, including two policemen, were shot today for "acts of violence against a German," it was announced officially.

The identity of the third was not disclosed. With the nine Czechs shot Friday, the total executed for anti-German actions reached 12.

TO DISPLAY PHOTOGRAPHS

Paul Kinsey, branch manager of the Metropolitan Edison company will be the guest speaker at the weekly meeting of the Gettysburg Lions club on Monday evening at 6 o'clock at Mrs. Smith's restaurant. Mr. Kinsey has had considerable experience as a photographer and exhibitor of photographic art and will tell the clubmen of some of his experiences and show some of his own pictures.

Westminster Woman Hurt in Accident

Several pigs crossing the Gettysburg-Littlestown highway were indirectly responsible for an automobile accident on Friday afternoon about 4 o'clock in which Mrs. Merle Correll, 39, 23 Park avenue, Westminster, Maryland, suffered a fracture of the right knee cap and brush burns. The accident occurred about a mile south of Two Taverns.

Ford A. Correll, Westminster, and his wife were following another car when the machine ahead stopped suddenly because of a herd of pigs being driven across the road ahead. The Correll car struck the rear of the other machine and Mrs. Correll was thrown forward against the front of the car. She is a patient in the Warner hospital.

The first car was operated by Earl P. Jeffcoat, 23, Gettysburg R. 1. He was unhurt but both cars were considerably damaged. Officer G. R. Wagenseller of the Gettysburg detail of the state motor police investigated.

COUNTY NATIVE VICTIM OF FIRE NEAR HANOVER

George A. Wallick Grove, aged 32 years, native of Littlestown R. 2, was burned to death in a fire that destroyed a barn and garage and damaged the house on his 15-acre farm in Heidelberg township, York county, three miles east of Hanover, Friday evening at 6 o'clock.

Mr. Grove lived on the farm the last two years and served as an agent for the York Farm bureau, an organization which furnishes supplies to farmers on a co-operative basis. A large tank-truck loaded with hundreds of gallons of gasoline and kerosene was stored in the barn. It is believed that the contents exploded and that the flames enveloped him before he could escape.

The body was lying directly back of the truck near the door of the barn. Firemen were able to remove it only after the flames were under control, about one and one-half hours after the fire started.

Mr. Grove had gone to the barn to feed the livestock. A 10-year-old son, Charles, looked out of the window and saw that the entire barn was apparently in flames. He told his mother of the fire. She had spoken to her husband only two minutes before, it was said.

Mrs. Grove made a frantic search (Continued on Page Two)

U. S. Takes Up British Fruit Ban

Washington, Nov. 18 (AP)—Sumner Wells, acting secretary of State, said Friday the American embassy in London was discussing with the British government the question of continuing British purchases of American fruits.

Great Britain recently issued restrictions on the importation of fruits.

Wells had no comment to make on reports that the United States had asked Britain and France to permit continuance of normal trade between the United States and European neutrals.

GERMANS HOLD SWEDISH CARGO

Berlin, Nov. 18 (AP)—Authorized sources said today the Swedish steamer Valparaiso, seized by the German navy with her cargo of newsprint would be held by Germany until officials were fully satisfied the ship was really going to South America.

(Lima, Peru, agents of the 3,750 ton Swedish steamer reported the ship was seized Friday and taken to a German port for examination. The Valparaiso sailed from Gothenburg, Sweden, October 15.)

Capture of the ship caused concern in South American publishing circles. The agents said she was destined for Peru, Chile and other neutral countries on the western coast where newsprint supplies were low.)

Meanwhile, Berlin official sources renewed discussion of the case involving the American ship City of Flint, captured by Germany and later released by asserting that the Stockholm newspaper Tidningen had reported the American sailor on whose account the German prize crew entered Haugebund, Norway, lies critically ill in a Bergen hospital.

FIRE IN CENTER SQUARE

The Gettysburg fire company was called out shortly after 9 o'clock Friday evening to put out a bonfire started in center square by Gettysburg college freshmen who staged a pajama parade that led from the campus to the center of town. Later in the evening a borough truck removed the debris from the street.

DRIVER GETS 30 DAYS; SUPPORT HEARINGS HELD

A hit-and-run driver who had paid for the damage he caused and then thrown himself upon the mercy of the court was sentenced by Judge W. C. Sheely in Adams county court here on Friday afternoon.

Charles E. Bowser, Abbottstown, who was arrested by a state motor policeman from the local substation on May 12 for failing to stop at the scene of an accident in which he had been involved on the Lincoln highway near Cross Keys, drew a 30 day sentence in the county jail and was ordered to pay the costs.

No one was injured in the accident in which he was involved and Bowser told the court that he had paid for the damage he did to the other car. He entered a plea of "no defense" to the hit-and-run count.

Non-Support Hearings

Hearings were held in a number of non-support cases and other pending actions during the afternoon.

Elvin Rehm, Butler township, was found guilty of a charge of surety of the peace and was ordered to enter into his own recognizance in the amount of $300 and to have the costs of his case paid by Saturday of next week. His wife, Jean Rehm, brought the charge.

Lloyd Kemper, York, formerly of York Springs, was ordered to pay $5 weekly to his wife on a non-support count. He must post a $300 bond and pay the costs of the case; also. He was ordered to report to the court in January.

William R. Orndorff, Hanover R. D., failed to appear before the court on a desertion charge and a process was issued for his arrest.

Raymond Smith, Gardners R. D., who entered a plea of guilty to one degree of a serious count filed against him by Mary Jean Jeffries, must pay hospital and doctor bills of the prosecutrix and make weekly payments of $1.50. He also must post a $500 bond to insure compliance with the court order.

Charge Dropped

Cornelius Orlena, colored former C.C.C. enrollee, was released under $300 bond on condition that he make weekly payment on the costs of a case in which he was charged with taking an automobile.

The court granted the petition of the district attorney to drop prosecution of a charge of surety of the peace against Elsie Routson, Tyrone township.

Robert Rummel, Biglerville, drew a weekly order of $4 on a support charge.

ARENDSVILLE CHURCH MEETING

A special congregational meeting was held by the Zion Evangelical Reformed church, Arendtsville, Friday evening in the auditorium of the Arendtsville vocational school. The meeting was held for the purpose of launching the annual Kingdom roll call. One hundred and twenty persons attended.

The service of worship was followed by the showing of a set of stereopticon slides illustrative of the theme, "Building Together." The pictures were descriptive of the work of the Evangelical Reformed church at home and abroad. The lecture accompanying the pictures was given by the pastor, the Rev. Ernest W. Brindle.

The report of the budget committee was presented by A. Dale Knouse, chairman. The other members of the committee were Ernest E. Wishard and Paul Rinehart. Pending adoption of the report by the congregation opportunity for questions and discussion concerning the various items was given.

The younger children enjoyed games in another part of the building during the business period of the congregational meeting. Mrs. E. W. Brindle supervised this play period.

The final part of the program was given over to fellowship and refreshments. This was under the direction of Mrs. Eva Rexroth and the following committee: Mrs. A. R. Heckenluber, Mrs. Elizabeth Mark, Mrs. Paul Beamer, Mrs. Marshall Longenecker, Mrs. A. Dale Knouse and Mrs. Ernest E. Wishard.

STOCK REPORT

New York, Nov. 18 (AP)—Slight price changes either way ruled in today's early stock market proceedings. Up a shade at a quiet opening were United States Steel, General Motors, Southern Pacific, Pennsylvania, General Electric and Montgomery Ward. Off a trifle were Douglas Aircraft, Bethlehem Steel and American Telephone.

Legion Will Show Chicago Pictures

Notices of the regular meeting of the Albert J. Lentz post No. 202 of the American Legion on Monday evening announce the showing of a 70-minute motion picture of the national Legion convention at Chicago.

The showing will take place after the regular business meeting which will be brief. The picture will begin at about 8:15 o'clock.

Legionnaires and their wives, auxiliary members, Sons of the Legion and all county veterans and their families are invited to be present for the showing. There will be no admission charge.

WARNS CANNERS NOT TO DEPEND ON WAR 'BOOM'

York, Pa., Nov. 18 (AP)—A warning against expanding production to meet expected war-stimulated increases in business was left today with the Pennsylvania Canners' association.

"The only hope for better business in the canning industry is a better domestic demand," Walter L. Graefe, Griffin, Georgia, president of the National Canners association, told the Pennsylvania group Friday night at a banquet concluding their annual convention.

The association adopted a resolution pledging full support to two new state agencies, the Department of Commerce and the job mobilization committee.

These organizations, the resolution said, "provide for constructive endeavor to the end of re-establishing Pennsylvania's proper place in industry and to lessen the relief burden of the Pennsylvania taxpayers."

Lieut. Gov. Samuel S. Lewis, Secretary of Agriculture John H. Light and Deputy Secretary Mark S. James, of the Commerce Department, attended the banquet.

PLEADS GUILTY IN AUTO DEATH

Myles R. Welkert, 29, Littlestown, signed a plea of guilty this morning to a charge of hit-and-run driving in the death of Robert J. Smith, Gettysburg, whose body was found along the Littlestown highway a half mile south of here at dawn on October 6.

At the same time District Attorney John P. Butt announced that the manslaughter count against Welkert will be dropped.

Welkert will appear in court next Saturday for sentence, his attorney, Richard A. Brown, Esq., said today. The maximum sentence for hit-and-run driving is one to three years and a $200 fine or both.

Corporal J. G. Warren, of the state motor police, who arrested Welkert after following a single clue—fragments of a headlight lens—was the prosecutor in the case.

3 Drivers Charged With Speeding

An airplane pilot whose ground speed by automobile on Friday approached speeds to which he was accustomed in the air was arrested by a state motor policeman from Gettysburg on a charge of driving at 65 miles an hour. The operator, Lawrence Sutton Semans, Uniontown, will be charged before Justice of the Peace Gerald Orndorff, Oxford township.

Two other speeders were nabbed by the same officer on Friday. Clarence Manchester, Milwaukee, Wisconsin, paid a $10 fine and the costs to Justice of the Peace William D. Brown, Hunterstown, for driving at 65 miles an hour. Fred Oswald, Philadelphia, will be accused before Justice Brown of driving at 60 miles an hour.

NAZIS FIRE ON DUTCH PLANES

The Hague, Nov. 18 (AP)—The government announced today that two German flying boats had appeared over Holland and one had fired at Netherlands planes which attacked it.

Apparently neither the German nor the Netherlands planes were damaged.

The German aircraft were sighted over the island of Vlieland off the northern coast. Both headed back toward Germany after the encounter.

The government said it had protested against the violation of Holland's neutrality and the shooting at Netherlands planes over their own territory.

John H. Pape, 49, fruit grower and garageman, died suddenly Friday evening at 9:40 o'clock at his home, 395 Buford avenue, from a heart attack.

He had suffered from a heart condition for the last three years and had a light attack last Sunday. He had been confined to his home for the greater part of the time this week but on Friday morning had visited his fruit farm in Huntington township.

Mr. Pape was stricken about 7:15 o'clock Friday evening a short time after he had gone to the second floor of his home after the evening meal. A physician was called but death followed about two hours later.

Towson Native

The deceased was a native of Towson, Maryland, and came to Gettysburg for the first time in 1913 and was employed as a mechanic by the late D. J. Forney at the National Garage until 1917. In 1918 he went to Pikesville, Maryland, and conducted a garage business of his own until 1922

Attorney Named to Conduct Inquiry

Harrisburg, Nov. 17 (AP) — Attorney General Claude T. Reno today appointed former Judge Roy P. Hicks, of Schuylkill county, as a special deputy attorney general, to conduct a grand jury investigation into "racket protection" charges against the office of District Attorney James C. Bane in Washington county.

Reno notified Judge Howard W. Hughes, of Washington county, that he was superseding the Washington county district attorney in the investigation.

The attorney general visited the Dauphin county court house to notify Hughes, who is presiding at the trial of David L. Lawrence, democratic state chairman on charges of blackmail and conspiracy.

Judge Hughes had asked the attorney general to take over the grand jury investigation of charges brought against the district attorney's office by Charles B. Wagner, a former democratic representative from Washington county.

The charges were made during the unsuccessful campaign of Bane, democratic nominee for one of two Washington county judgeships.

BOHEET THAT EROSION
Columbus, Neb. — Bohet is the name of a soil conservation district being formed near here. The reason: Bohet means "stop" in the Pawnee Indian language, and the district's sponsors want to "boheet" eroding soil.

General Motors Units Convicted In Trust Case

South Bend, Ind., Nov. 17 (AP) — Government lawyers today hailed the anti-trust conviction of General Motors corporation, world's largest automobile manufacturer, as a victory in the broad federal anti-monopoly drive and a blow at factory control of car financing.

A federal jury of Hoosier farmers and little business men Thursday night convicted the corporation and three affiliates of violating the Sherman act by forcing dealers to give installment sales paper to the General Motors Acceptance corporation.

But it acquitted 17 officials of the concerns, including President William S. Knudsen and Board Chairman Alfred P. Sloan, Jr. of General Motors, General Manager M. E. Coyle, of Chevrolet, a G. M. vice president, and President John J. Schumann, Jr. of G. M. A. C.

The affiliates were G. M. A. C., G. M. A. C. of Indiana and the General Motors Sales corporation. Others of motordom's "big three" — Ford and Chrysler — were pledged to steer clear of the same kind of coercion of which G. M. C. was convicted. They were indicted, too, here in May, 1938, but later in consent decrees agreed to make the General Motors case a test.

The jury had deliberated 25 hours and 40 minutes on evidence given by more than 200 witnesses in a five and a half weeks' trial.

The law permits fines up to $5,000 each on the corporations.

WHY DOLLARS

LEAVE HOME

Too many of our home dollars succumb to the "glitter and glare" of big city temptation — and we let them go when we should show them how well they can do at home.

Unnecessary "big city buying" does harm to local merchants; it weakens our community. Let us make ourselves familiar with the quality and prices of the goods obtainable on home shelves before we permit our home-earned dollars to leave home.

DOMESTIC NEED TO AID INDUSTRY, YOUNG BELIEVES

New York, Nov. 18 (AP).—Tall, freckled Owen D. Young, who Friday announced his retirement from the chairmanship of the giant General Electric company, believes actual domestic need underlies the general business slump in the United States.

Differing with economic observers who have predicted a sharp slump in the spring, Young said in an interview that "a large part" of domestic activity is based, not on preparations to handle war orders, but on needs deferred by uncertainty as to what would happen in Europe.

"I have heard many people say the fall upturn in general business, especially in machine tools and factory equipment, represented efforts of industrial companies to put their plants in order to handle the demand which might come from Europe if the war long continued," Young said.

Deferred Business
"I do not agree with this. It is true that American business activity has spurred ahead since the war started, but a large part of the orders placed the past couple months actually represent commitments deferred the past year or so by the uncertainty seen in those months leading up to the war declaration."

"There may be some tapering of activity in the spring, once these heavy deferred orders are filled. But I do not think we will witness any outright collapse in industrial operations unless adverse influences, now unseen, appear."

Young followed his own rule that a man should "retire at 65" in announcing he would resign the General Electric chairmanship January 1. Gerard Swope will retire as president on the same date, although both will continue as directors.

Young expressed the opinion that labor troubles which now plague operations of scattered plants sooner or later will disappear, with concessions by both managements and workers.

QUIET RULES ON WESTERN FRONT

Berlin, Nov. 18 (AP).—French troops were reported today by D.N.B., official German news agency, to be digging in east of the Moselle river during a lull in fighting on the western front.

Emplacements for long range artillery have been constructed by the French in this sector, D.N.B. said. The entire northern end of the front from the Moselle to the Rhine was reported quiet Friday except for occasional artillery fire at isolated points. The upper Rhine also was quiet save for intermittent French machine gun fire directed against the German bank near Breisach.

Nazi scouting planes, D.N.B. said, Friday penetrated into France as far as Bordeaux and executed reconnaissance missions over the Shetland and Orkney islands.

Three British planes, which the Germans assumed had intended to attack the naval base at Wilhelmshaven, were driven off by coastal anti-aircraft fire, D.N.B. added. German fighting planes took off in pursuit but failed to contact the British.

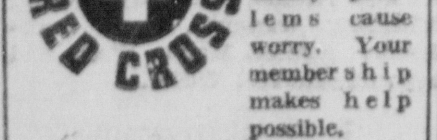

(The British air ministry announced Friday night that royal air force planes had successfully photographed an important German naval base. The British also announced that a German plane had been driven off after flying over the Shetland islands, and that one of two German planes which approached the east coast of England was downed by royal air force fighters.)

HOG PRICES DROP

Chicago, Nov. 18 (AP).—Hog prices today were the lowest in five years. It was bad news to livestock farmers whose corn cribs are bulging with feed grain and whose piglets teemed with a new fall crop of "squealers." The drop in prices marked the elimination of the last vestige of the war boom which lifted hog prices about $2.50 in a single week—the sharpest rise in the history of the Chicago stockyards.

for her husband. Realization of the futility of the search apparently struck her and she collapsed. She was taken to the home of the neighboring farm of Paul Frey and a physician was summoned.

Dr. L. U. Zech, York county coroner, conducted an investigation and stated it was his opinion that the inflammable liquids contained in the truck exploded and enveloped the victim in a sheet of flames before he could escape.

Damage to the buildings was estimated at $2,000 and the tank-truck was valued at more than $1,000, without the gasoline and kerosene. The truck belonged to the farm bureau and the tank mounted on it was the property of Mr. Grove.

Until two years ago Mr. Grove had been employed as a cabinet maker in Hanover and had lived on Carlisle street at that place. He was the adopted son of Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Grove, late of Hanover.

Mr. Grove was born the son of Emmanuel D. Wallick, Littlestown R. 2, and the late Mary C. (Warnic) Wallick.

Surviving are his wife, who before marriage was Mabel Geesey, of Gitt's Run; one son, Charles, at home; the father, Emmanuel D. Wallick, Littlestown R. 2; the paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Emmanuel S. Wallick, Littlestown R. 2, and two brothers, Earl Wallick, Frederick, Maryland, and Dennis Wallick, Littlestown R. 2.

Funeral services Monday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock with a private service at the W. A. Feiser funeral home, Carlisle street, Hanover. His minister, the Rev. Dr. E. M. Sando, pastor of the West Manheim Reformed church, will officiate.

Mr. Grove had been a member of Bethel church, Smith Station. Interment will be made in Rest Haven cemetery, Hanover.

Miss Ann Gilliland, Carlisle street, visited her niece, Miss Ann Louise Morris, who is a student at Wilson college, Chambersburg, on Thursday.

About 35 guests enjoyed a tea Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. A. H. Barr, Carlisle street. Assisting with the affair were Mrs. S. F. Snyder, Mrs. Thomas Cline, Mrs. A. A. Hughes, Mrs. Dunning Idle and Mrs. Louis Quintanilla.

TESTIFIES ON TYPE OF GRAVEL IN ERIE ROADS

Harrisburg, Nov. 18 (AP).—A dismissed highways engineer testified today at the trial of David L. Lawrence, democratic state chairman, that roads in Erie district selected for improvement involved use of about 100,000 tons of gravel but denied there was any "thought" of favoring the pioneer materials company.

E. A. Griffith, district engineer, who was fired by former Governor George H. Earle after an investigation of gravel contracts, gave the testimony under cross examination by Oliver K. Eaton, chief defense counsel.

Lawrence is charged with blackmail and conspiracy in connection with the gravel contracts. The prosecution contends he sought to favor the Pioneer company.

Eaton said the date for the opening of bids for roads in the Erie-Crawford-Warren district was November 9, 1936. Identifying six roads on an exhibit as selected for improvement he asked Griffith:

"Did you have some understanding or did you receive some order that the selection of roads were to make involved the use of about 100,000 tons of gravel?"

"That's right," Griffith replied.

Q—You were to select enough roads to make up such tonnage? A—"That's right."

"Will you tell the jury whether in the selection of these roads you had in mind the favoring of the Pioneer Materials company?" asked Eaton.

Griffith smiled and said:

"That was farthest from my thoughts."

Eaton introduced maps of the three counties to show the location of the roads to be improved and their proximity to the gravel deposits from which the Pioneer company obtained its supplies.

He said the six roads he first selected were insufficient to make up the 100,000 tonnage.

Eaton's cross examination of Griffith was centered on an effort to show the jury that the most feasible type of road from the standpoint of economy was built in those counties.

FALSE ALARM

Titusville, Fla., Nov. 18 (AP).—False alarms never were popular with firemen here, and that goes for one which originated in their own department. Hearing the fire alarm siren's long blast, the firemen dashed inside the station to jump into their fire fighting togs. As each came in he was handed a brush and rag, told to get busy on a job they had been putting off for a month—giving the fire truck a new coat of red paint.

"CRADLE" ROCKY

York, Pa., Nov. 18 (AP).—The cradle of high school education in York—the 67-year-old building at Philadelphia street and Park alley—is considered by the local school district as only a $10,000 fire risk, erected at a cost of $41,700 and remodeled in 1900 for $15,000. The building is now insured against fire for only $10,000. It's no longer used as a school.

NAZIS IMPOSE TREASON LAW; KILL 6 CZECHS

Berlin, Nov. 18 (AP).—Nazi officials, spurred by "rebellious activities" in the protectorate of Bohemia and Moravia, were reported today to have followed up the execution of nine Prague students by clamping German laws against treason on the former Czechoslovak provinces.

The newspaper Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung said Nazi treason law had been imposed "in addition to the old Czech law for defense of the republic."

At the same time, Adolf Hitler's newspaper Volkischer Beobachter reported that Dr. Emil Hacha, president of the Bohemia-Moravia protectorate, had been taken ill and that his recovery was expected to require considerable time.

Doctor Hacha, 66, was elected president of the shrunken Czechoslovak republic November 30, 1938, to succeed Dr. Eduard Benes, who resigned after the September 29, 1938, Munich conference on partition of his country by Germany.

Berlin officials, meanwhile, remained tight-lipped concerning the executions, which were disclosed Friday night by D.N.B., official German news agency.

Information obtained from an American official in Prague shortly before telephone communication with the former Czechoslovak capital was cut off indicated that the city was quiet.

Reports in informed Prague circles were to the effect that the executions had followed a raid on an illegal printing establishment in the home of a former Czech official.

D.N.B. said the executions, which were accompanied by numerous arrests, were ordered because of assaults on Germans on October 28 and November 15 by students described as "followers" of Doctor Benes.

Czechs celebrated the 21st anniversary of the founding of their republic on October 28, defying a German ban on public demonstrations. Several clashes with police resulted, and many arrests were made.

Earlier dispatches from Prague Friday had disclosed that the city was being patrolled by members of the black-shirted SS elite guard under command of Sepp Dietrich, trusted friend of Adolf Hitler.

D.N.B. said extraordinary measures taken to preserve order included closing for three years of Czech colleges and academies where leaders in "acts of resistance" were said to have been particularly active.

PENNY A VISIT

Spokane, Wash., Nov. 18 (AP).—The old fashioned, long-time courtship has not gone out of fashion. Fay Smith and her mother walked into the auditor's office and dumped 450 pennies on the counter. They represented 450 visits by her intended, Ernest Faler. "Every time he came to call he left a penny to pay for the license," she explained.

MAIL STOLEN

Monroe City, Mo., Nov. 18 (AP).—Two masked bandits held up Station Agent A. G. Squires in the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad depot here early today and escaped with seven mail pouches. Postal Inspector Tom Rhea, of Hannibal, Missouri, said the pouches contained no money, although three were first class mail.

Y. W. C. A. Activities

These activities have been listed for next week on the Y. W. C. A. calendar:

Monday afternoon at 4:15 o'clock, a meeting of the senior Girl Reserves.

Tuesday afternoon at 5 o'clock, a covered dish supper by the senior Girl Reserves, and at 7:30 o'clock a meeting of the Annie Danner club.

Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock, a meeting of the eighth grade Girl Reserves; at 4:15 o'clock, a meeting of the freshman Girl Reserves; at 6 o'clock, a meeting of junior Girl Reserves, and at 6:30 o'clock, the gym class.

Thursday the building will be closed in observance of Thanksgiving Day.

Friday afternoon at 3:45 o'clock, a meeting of the seventh grade Forget-me-nots; at 6:30 o'clock, meeting of a new Girl Reserve club, and at 7:30 o'clock, a meeting of the officers of the county Sunday School association.

Saturday morning the seventh grade girls will salt peanuts in the "Y" kitchen.

FLAPPING COLLAR

Philadelphia, Nov. 18 (AP).—The calisthenics of orchestra conducting have finally spread against sartorially splendid Leopold Stokowski. His "gates ajar" collar came loose with a pop at a Philadelphia orchestra concert Friday, flapped for five minutes and sent a murmur of consternation through the sedate Academy of Music. But the music flowed on and Stokowski made repairs during intermission. Nothing like it had been seen in the academy since guest Conductor Sir Thomas Beecham lost a suspender button at the peak of a crescendo.

BIGLERVILLE P. T. A. HOLDS MEETING

A capacity house marked the November meeting of the Biglerville Parent-Teachers' association held Friday evening in the school auditorium. E. A. Meyer, the president, presided.

Announcement was made of the drive for members for the association which is now being made.

Miss Marian Garretson's room won the prize for having the highest percentage of parents in attendance.

The major part of the program was presented by the Blue Danube singers who appeared as one of the numbers on the school's lyceum course. Other numbers on the program included selections by the rhythm band of the primary grades, songs by the third and fourth grades and talks on the play "Death Takes a Holiday" by Janet Carbaugh and Virginia Baugher. The play will be presented by the Peter Pan Players dramatic club of the school on Thursday and Friday evenings, December 7 and 8.

Harold Steiner, of Arendtsville, returned this morning from New York city where he attended a meeting of the Eastern States Entomological association.

Earl Fohl, John Fidler, Russell Mummert and Paul Diehl, of Biglerville, spent Friday hunting near Huntingdon. Mr. Fohl and Mr. Diehl each shot a wild turkey. The only other turkey reported at Biglerville since the opening of the season was shot by Lloyd Garretson.

George McCans, of Guernsey, spent Thursday with his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. William Barbour, of Quaker Valley.

A Rally Day and Harvest Home service will be held at Mt. Olivet United Brethren church Sunday morning at 10:30 o'clock. The program will be furnished by children from the Milton Wright Memorial home, near Chambersburg.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Slaybaugh, of Guernsey, entertained at dinner Thursday. Mrs. Ross Huff, of Warsaw, Indiana; Mrs. Willis Bream and grandson, Dickey Gaither, Biglerville R. D.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Lawver, Youngstown, Ohio, have concluded a visit of several days with Mr. Lawver's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Deardorff, Biglerville.

CUT-UP

Pittsfield, Mass.—Trying to stab a calf while butchering, Irving Goodman missed and hit another calf. It was his own. Now he's in the hospital with left leg cut to the bone.

GAME GUY

Covington, Va.—A hunter, enthusiastic over killing a five-point buck, hailed a stranger and proudly showed him his kill. The stranger glanced at the buck, looked carefully at the gun, then wrote out a summons charging the hunter's gun contained more shells than the law allowed—and signed himself, Game Warden Perry F. Wright.

MARKSMEN

Oakland, Calif.—Naval aviation reservists believe they've hit tops in novel turkey shoots. With sacks of flour they'll "bomb" targets from 1,000 feet. Forty turkeys are the prizes.

NO FAD

San Diego, Calif.—Three thousand football fans gasped as Orion W. Todd, Jr., stepped on the field as timekeeper. He was in full dress attire. The former Illinois university athlete explained he was at a banquet when called to officiate at the California Poly-San Diego Marines game.

NO HEAD WORK

Omaha, Neb.—Red indeed were the faces of 60 Omaha university students and two professors when they read the school paper. The paper told how they had signed a petition promising to cut off their own heads. The paper's editor, Henrietta Kieser, said the decapitation clause was "buried" in the whereases and wherefors asking two Thanksgiving Day holidays for the students.

LUCKY BREAK

Clarinda, Ia.—Joe Krise didn't go pheasant hunting but he got a bird just the same. Krise was stauding on the sidewalk when a pheasant whizzed by his head and crashed into a store window, breaking its neck. "It has been years since I went pheasant hunting," said Joe as he trudged home for a pheasant dinner.

48 AMERICAN SHIPS SEARCHED FOR CONTRABAND

Washington, Nov. 18 (AP).—The State department today reported 48 cases in which belligerents had detained American ships for examination of papers or cargo which cleared port before enactment of the new neutrality act.

Of the total detentions, Great Britain was responsible for 33, France for 10, Germany for four and an unidentified vessel for one.

The report included information received by the State department between September 1 and November 17. Forty-four ships were detained, but four of these were stopped twice.

In most cases, the department reported, American ships were not stopped by warships on the high seas but were detained when they docked at belligerent ports.

Time is money in the operation of an ocean-going ship, and American operators are contending that ships have been held for unreasonably long periods. The State department report showed that the average period of detention was eight days.

Flint Held Longest

The longest detention was that of the City of Flint, held for 27 days by a German prize crew until it was released November 4 by Norwegian authorities. The second longest was that of the City of Joliet, a Lykes brothers steamer carrying cotton, lead and copper. It was detained by French authorities September 14 and was held for 22 days.

Shipping companies are lodging their complaints about lengthy detentions with the Maritime commission, and that body is passing them along to the State department for study. No action has been taken thus far.

There have been no formal claims for the loss of cargoes, and authorities here do not yet have accurate information on the total amount of goods seized, nor how many ship operators have been compensated by belligerents. Information at the State department was that Great Britain had compensated some American owners for seized cargoes, however.

The department's report showed a release date for all but one of the detained ships. That was the Lacombe of the Tampa Intercoast Steamship company, which was reported detained upon its arrival Friday at Weymouth, England.

Three instances of American ships being detained and examined by German submarines were reported.

To Re-Route Mail

This government recognizes the right of belligerents to halt neutral ships at sea for examination of their papers and cargoes to determine whether they may be carrying contraband to the enemy. If contraband is found and evidence obtained that it is destined for delivery ultimately to the enemy, the contraband may be seized and unloaded at sea or the vessels taken into port for unloading. Similar treatment is accepted for American ships which sailed before the neutrality law restricted their movements and which entered belligerent ports voluntarily.

The State department reported two seizures by the British of United States mail.

Postal officials reported nearly a month ago that the British, in searching ships for contraband, had taken American mail, censored it and then sent it back to this country. It was announced here that mail to Germany would, in future, be routed through Italy to avoid interference by Britain.

DEATH

Edward H. Anthony

Edward H. Anthony, 65, Hanover R. 3, died in Gettysburg Thursday evening following an extended illness.

Mr. Anthony was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Anthony. For a period of thirty-eight years he had been employed at the Albion brickyards at New Oxford, but had retired about a year ago. His wife, who before marriage was Ada Grimm, preceded him in death a year ago last March 8.

Surviving him are three children, Mrs. Charles Ruby, Hanover; Ray Edward Anthony and Mrs. Leroy Jacoby, Hanover R. 3; eighteen grandchildren; five great-grandchildren and two brothers, William Anthony, Hanover R. D., and George Anthony, near Boonessville.

Funeral services Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the W. A. Feiser funeral home, Carlisle street, Hanover, with the Rev. George C. Daugherty, pastor of Lohr's Memorial United Brethren church, officiating. Interment in the Lutheran cemetery at Abbottstown. Friends may call at the funeral home this evening from 6 to 9 o'clock.

POLICEMAN MUST PAY

Pittsburgh, Nov. 18 (AP).—Common pleas court hold that a police officer should be a good citizen "and a good citizen pays his debts." It upheld the right of city public safety officials to dismiss Patrolman Bert Elock, who was alleged to have owed creditors more than $300.

QUARTERBACKS' CLUB QUIZZES COACH WEEKLY

Oklahoma City, Nov. 16 (AP)—Anyone still so naive as to regard football as a sport and not a disease needs only to attend one of the weekly sessions of the Downtown Quarterbacks' club of this city to learn his error.

There are minor imitations in other cities, but this one is the papa of them all. There were 750 members at the latest meeting, probably a third of them women, and they went at their quarterbacking seriously for three solid hours, starting at the unholly hour of 10:30 a. m.

The club, originated by Sports Editor Bus Ham, of the Daily Oklahoman, was so modest at first that the charter members met in one restaurant and then another to discuss the gridiron situation. Now it has been thrown open to the general public in one of the city's swankiest ball rooms, and if the membership continues to grow they will have to move into a ball park.

Frankly, and with no pretense whatsoever, the quarterbacks are football nuts, and the University of Oklahoma the object of their whole affection. Each week they put Coach Tom Stidham squarely on the spot, and some of the questions he answers are a caution. Nor does he attempt to sidestep.

For 75 cents, which includes the price of a hasty meal, each member is entitled to ask the Sooner mentor any question whatsoever, and Stidham is bound by the club's code to give them the lowdown.

The only thing he held back this week was a diagram of the defense he intends to use today against Paul Christman, of Missouri. He asked that his interrogator please go to Columbia and see Christman get the works.

In return from taking the quarterbacks into his confidence, Stidham is given some important co-operation in getting and keeping good Oklahoma football players at the state university.

Teachers' college is hurling a defy at any team in the east for a soccer tilt.

Good luck, boys.—Today we received one of those good luck chain letters. . . It said: "Break this chain and you'll have bad luck." . . . Which may explain why the letter bore the names of such football celebs as Bert Ingwerson, of Northwestern; N. C. Crisp, of Alabama; Frank Dobson, of Maryland; C. A. Bernier, of Hampden-Sidney; D. C. (Pea Head) Walker, of Wake Forest; Charley Bowser, of Pitt, and Tom Stidham, of Oklahoma.

CLAIRTON DRAWS BIG CROWDS
Clairton, Pa., Nov. 18 (AP)—Clairton claims top ranking if there are any nominations for Pennsylvania's hottest football spot. Its high school team, backed by a student body of 1,313, has drawn as many as 12,000 fans to a single game and this season's eight contests at home were witnessed by some 50,000. Attendance totaled 60,000 for nine games last year. Population of the steel town is 17,000. Inauguration of night games last year was credited with boosting the sport. Then, too, the class AA team has enjoyed some success. Only one game was lost last year but two defeats and a tie mar this season's record.

PIRATES NOT NIGHT OWLS
Pittsburgh, Nov. 18 (AP)—President Bill Benswanger of the Pirates, back from a vacation in New York, said he is still opposed to night baseball in Pittsburgh. He commented, however, that future conditions might cause him to look at the proposition in a different way. Some local fans have been agitating for baseball under the electric lights.

"ANYTHING CAN HAPPEN"
Mountain Lakes, N. J., Nov. 18 (AP)—Arthur F. Hinrichsen is going to attend his 34th consecutive Yale-Princeton football game at New Haven, Connecticut, today. He first went in 1904, when an uncle, a Yale man, took him to the game. Hinrichsen later enrolled in Princeton, graduating with the class of 1910. The only years he did not see a game were two during the World war when none was played. But with all that experience, he refused any prophecy on the 1939 clash. "Anything can happen in the Yale-Princeton game," he said.

Baby-Watching Business Pays

Pittsburgh, Nov. 18 (AP)—Shirley Lehrer is just a high school senior of 16 but already she's the manager of a business with 20 of her school friends as her employees.

Child-watching is the object of the Shirley baby service which is enjoying a brisk business allowing weary mothers to have a needed evening off. From her home Shirley arranges jobs for her friends taking care of youngsters—any child between the ages of two months and 12 years. The charge is 50 cents an evening until midnight with 10 cents an hour after that. And it's the same whether there are one or three children.

Shirley gets 10 per cent of the earnings of her employees and business has been so good in a single year that she has saved $80 toward her tuition at Carnegie Tech next year.

"We seldom have a difficult case," declared the young business woman. "My greatest problem is with the girl's mothers' when our customers stay out too late."

Babson Attacks School System

Boston, Nov. 18 (AP)—Asserting that high school students "know more about cheers than chores," Roger Babson, investment specialist, charged Friday that the school system in the United States was "primarily responsible for at least 7,000,000 of the 10,000,000 unemployed" in the nation.

Business men, he declared in a prepared address before the New England Association of School Superintendents, "are forced to cease to employ the young men and women emerging from a broken down organization which has been despised by political raiders."

Babson listed 10 factors which he said contributed to unemployment, but added that "the big reason is that young people are being graduated from our schools today as goods are being sold by department stores. Politically minded school committees are giving these children—not what untrained children need—but what misled parents think they want them to have."

Maintaining that as teachers' salaries went up teaching posts became better political plums, the spade-bearded economist contended that school boards had become "political footballs."

CAT TALE

Bath, N. Y. (AP)—Add "cat came back" stories: Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wilcox took Sir Felix (a stray kitten when they acquired him a year earlier) to relatives in Fillmore, 60 miles away, as a gift. Three months after their return, Sir Felix was home, apparently unassisted.

BULLET FROSH TRIP F. AND M.

Gettysburg college's undefeated freshman football team chalked up another victory Friday afternoon by defeating the F. and M. yearlings at Lancaster, 13-7.

The teams battled to a scoreless deadlock in the first half, the only serious threat being made by the Bullets who once reached the F. and M. 25-yard line.

The locals drove 65 yards for their first touchdown in the third period. A pass, Florsheim to Shadle, which was good for about eight yards, produced the score.

F. and M. drove deep into Bullet territory in the third period and reached the 15-yard line. The Diplomats took to the air with fatal results when Geiter intercepted a pass on the five-yard line and raced 95 yards for a score. Wolfgang added the extra point on a placement kick.

Late in the last period F. and M. tallied its touchdown on a 20-yard pass to Hudson.

Geiter took the kickoff following the touchdown and raced back to the enemy's 15-yard stripe before being downed. The whistle ended another Bullet threat a few plays later.

Altoona Employees Assured of Pay

Altoona, Pa., Nov. 18 (AP)—Payless paydays for city employees were averted today with announcement that local banks had agreed to discount municipal paychecks until January 1.

The city council, faced with an empty treasury and receipts earmarked to repay temporary loans, had announced there would be no paydays unless the banks discounted checks or a special tax of 1½ mills was levied. Payrolls for the rest of the year total $85,000.

Investment bank agents who studied the city's fiscal situation said the municipal debt was not large and that the city could be "out of the red" in a few years with adjustment of the financial structure.

May Ask Congress to Create Budget Office

Washington, Nov. 18 (AP)—Congress may be asked to tighten the federal purse strings against excessive governmental spending through the creation of a legislative budget office.

Senator Adams (D-Colo.), a member of the appropriations committee, disclosed today economy-minded legislators have discussed proposals to set up a group of independent experts to "double check" on the need for all departmental appropriations.

He said the preliminary outline of the proposal contemplated establishment of a joint senate-house group similar to the point committee on internal revenue and taxation. It would study appropriation needs, he said, in much the same manner as the revenue committee looks into tax requirements and reports to congress.

American Skipper Reports Canadians Fired Across Bow

Seattle, Nov. 18 (AP)—Puget Sound shipping circles were stirred Friday by the report of a veteran American skipper that a Canadian ship had fired across his steamer's bow when he failed to heed an order to halt promptly for inspection at Prince Rupert, B. C.

Capt. A. J. Borkland of the steamer North Coast said the warning shot was fired Sunday.

He declared he had reported in advance that he intended taking the North Coast into Prince Rupert, but a Dominion vessel hailed his ship, questioned him as to why it was there and ordered that he hoist two signal flags.

"I ordered the flags brought up, but, as the vessel was in dangerous waters, I kept her moving for steerage way to prevent grounding," Captain Borkland said. "Before the flags arrived, the Canadian vessel fired a shot across the bow of the ship and I then brought her to a full stop."

At the western Canada base at Esquimault, B. C., an officer was reported as saying:

"All ships which come into Canadian ports must submit to examination in wartime. We can't afford to let anyone through. But, on the other hand, we certainly have no intention of being nasty or rude—especially in the case of American ships are always stopping in."

He said it was an error in judgment if the examining officer tried to stop the North Coast in dangerous water.

Of about a dozen "international languages" invented by scholars, none has come into general use.

URGES BUILDING UP FARM INCOME

Peoria, Ill., Nov. 18 (AP)—Wheeler McMillen, farm magazine editor, told the National Grange convention Friday that national prosperity was contingent upon a long-time, income-building farm policy.

Half of the Nation's population, he said in his prepared address, is directly affected by the economic status of the farmer. He said the agricultural group formed nearly 25 per cent of the total population and that the income of another 25 per cent was derived from the farmer's dollar.

"When that half of the nation prospers," he declared, "orders for good flow to the factories, men are hired and in turn start buying, transport is busy, finance is busy, and the entire economic machine moves into higher gear."

"Whenever the annual earning power of agriculture again reaches 12 billion dollars, the national income will exceed 80 millions, and the problem of unemployment will cease to be serious. When agriculture can earn 15 billion dollars there will be more jobs in the United States than there are men."

Hermit Bills Water Company for Storage Of Snow 55 Years

Denver, Nov. 18 (AP)—A self-styled hermit with a nimble wit has Colorado's irrigation experts performing mental gymnastics.

From his mountain home high in the Rockies, F. E. Gimlett notified Gov. Ralph L. Carr that, if water laws decreed the moisture stored in snowbanks on his land belonged to an irrigation company, he intended to collect storage fees.

Terming himself "the hermit of Arbor Villa," he also enclosed a copy of the bill he said he had submitted to the Highline Canal company, Pueblo, Colorado, asking $2,750 for "fifty-five years storage of one snow bank" on his mineral land.

"I have owned the claims for fifty-five years," he wrote the governor. "Every Winter along come snowstorms and cover my claims so deep that I cannot do any development work."

"Now if that snow belongs to the company in the Spring, it belongs to the company also in the Winter and I do not choose to let them use my land for storage purposes."

The governor, a water lawyer of some repute, conceded that "Mr. Gimlett may have an idea there—I can't think of a good argument against it."

Expet Added Safety on Roads

When Mr. Deeds goes to town it's a very safe motor vehicle that carries him, thanks to engineering improvements incorporated in the car. And his ride, as well as that of millions of other Americans, will be safer as better roads and drivers develop.

Due to the strides in highway safety, a reduction of 37.3 per cent in the fatality rate has been accomplished within four years. This means a saving of 29,000 lives, and the elimination of a million personal injuries and $1,000,000,000 in property damage.

Scientific traffic studies going on at the present time promise to make the highways themselves as nearly "accident proof" as possible in the future. The outlook is for a system of modern highways, which will include a concentration of express roads where the traffic is most dense, according to a master plan already prepared by the Public Roads administration. Such a system would represent not more than two per cent of the roads of the country, but would carry some 50 per cent of the traffic on expertly built highways.

With the increase of better roads and better drivers, the day is envisioned soon which will see the fatality rate dropping to a fraction of what it has been. The motor car, which now carries 91 per cent of travel in America, is headed for the time when it will be the nation's safest form of transportation, officials believe. This year the vehicle mileage exceeds 250 billion, with each mile safer than in any

NEWARK MERGER

Newark, N. J., Nov. 18 (AP)—S. I. Newhouse, publisher of the Newark "Ledger," a morning newspaper, announced Friday purchase of the name, good-will and circulation lists of the Newark "Star-Eagle," an afternoon publication.

Announcement of the suspension of publication was made in Friday's editions of the "Star-Eagle" by Publisher Paul Block. The "Star-Eagle" is 108 years old.

Block explained the suspension was due to "increased production costs due to mounting labor costs and shorter hours, as well as rising newspaper prices and increased taxes."

DOMESTIC NEED TO AID INDUSTRY, YOUNG BELIEVES

New York, Nov. 18 (AP)—Tall, bearded Owen D. Young, who Friday announced his retirement from the chairmanship of the giant General Electric company, believes actual domestic need underlies the general business slump in the United States.

Differing with economic observers who have predicted a sharp slump in the spring, Young said in an interview that "a large part" of domestic activity is based, not on preparations to handle war orders, but on needs deferred by uncertainty as to what would happen in Europe.

"I have heard many people say the fall upturn in general business, especially in machine tools and factory equipment, represented efforts of industrial companies to put their plants in order to handle the demand which might come from Europe if the war long continued," Young said.

Deferred Business

"I do not agree with this. It is true that American business activity has started ahead since the war started, but a large part of the orders placed the past couple months actually represent commitments deferred the past year or so by the uncertainty seen in those months leading up to the war declaration."

"There may be some tapering of activity in the spring, once these heavy deferred orders are filled. But I do not think we will witness any outright collapse in industrial operations unless adverse influences, now unseen, appear."

Young followed his own rule that a man should "retire at 65" in announcing he would resign the General Electric chairmanship January 1. Gerard Swope will retire as president on the same date, although both will continue as directors.

Young expressed the opinion that labor troubles which now plague operations of scattered plants sooner or later will disappear, with concessions by both managements and workers.

QUIET RULES ON WESTERN FRONT

Berlin, Nov. 18 (AP)—French troops were reported today by D.N.B., official German news agency, to be quiet in east of the Moselle river during a lull in fighting on the western front.

Emplacements for long range artillery have been constructed by the French in this sector, D.N.B. said.

The entire northern end of the front from the Moselle to the Rhine was reported quiet Friday except for occasional artillery fire at isolated points. The upper Rhine also was quiet save for intermittent French machine gun fire directed against the German bank near Breischach.

Nazi scouting planes, D.N.B. said, Friday penetrated into France as far as Bordeaux and executed reconnaissance missions over the Shetland and Orkney islands.

A French communiqué said Nazi planes had flown over French territory and that one had been forced down and the crew captured.

Three British planes, which the Germans assumed had intended to attack the naval base at Wilhelmshaven, were driven off by coastal anti-aircraft fire, D.N.B. added.

German fighting planes took off in force but failed to contact the British.

The British air ministry announced Friday night that royal air force planes had successfully photographed an important German naval base. The British also announced that a German plane had been shot off after flying over the Shetland islands, and that one of two German planes which approached the east coast of England was shot down by royal air force fighters.

HOG PRICES DROP

Chicago, Nov. 18 (AP)—Hog prices were the lowest in five years. It was bad news to livestock farmers whose corn cribs are bulging with feed grain and whose piglets are fattened with a new fall crop of "squashers."

The drop in prices marked the elimination of the last vestige of the war boom which lifted hog prices about $2.50 in a single week—the sharpest rise in the history of the Chicago stockyards.

TESTIFIES ON TYPE OF GRAVEL IN ERIE ROADS

Harrisburg, Nov. 18 (AP)—A dismissed highway engineer testified today at the trial of David L. Lawrence, democratic state chairman, that roads in Erie district selected for improvement involved use of about 100,000 tons of gravel but denied there was any "thought" of favoring the pioneer materials company.

E. A. Griffith, district engineer, who was fired by former Governor George H. Earle after an investigation of gravel contracts, gave testimony under cross examination by Oliver K. Eaton, chief defense counsel.

Lawrence is charged with blackmail and conspiracy in connection with the gravel contracts. The prosecution contends he sought to favor the Pioneer company.

Eaton said the date for the opening of bids for roads in the Erie-Crawford-Warren district was November 9, 1936. Identifying six roads on an exhibit as selected for improvement he asked Griffith:

"Did you have some understanding or did you receive some order that the selection of roads you were to make involved the use of about 100,000 tons of gravel?"

"That's right," Griffith replied.

Q—You were to select enough roads to make up such tonnage? A—"That's right."

"Will you tell the jury whether in the selection of these roads you had in mind the favoring of the Pioneer Materials company?" asked Eaton.

Griffith smiled and said:

"That was farthest from my thoughts."

Eaton introduced maps of the three counties to show the location of the roads to be improved and their proximity to the gravel deposits from which the Pioneer company obtained its supplies.

He said the six roads he first selected were insufficient to make up the 100,000 tonnage.

Eaton's cross examination of Griffith was centered on an effort to show the jury that the most feasible type of road from the standpoint of economy was built in those counties.

COUNTY NATIVE VICTIM OF FIRE

for her husband. Realization of the futility of the search apparently struck her and she collapsed. She was taken to the home of the neighboring farm of Paul Frey and a physician was summoned.

Dr. L. U. Zach, York county coroner, conducted an investigation and stated it was his opinion that the inflammable liquids contained in the truck exploded and enveloped the victim in a sheet of flames before he could escape.

Damage to the buildings was estimated at $2,000 and the tank-truck was valued at more than $1,000, without the gasoline and kerosene. The truck belonged to the farm bureau and the tank mounted on it was the property of Mr. Grove.

Until two years ago Mr. Grove had been employed as a cabinet maker in Hanover and had lived on Carlisle street at that place. He was the adopted son of Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Grove, late of Hanover.

Mr. Grove was born the son of Emmanuel D. Wallick, Littlestown R. 2, and the late Mary C. (Wurm) Wallick.

Surviving are his wife, who before marriage was Mabel Geesey, of Gitt's Run; one son, Charles, at home; the father, Emmanuel D. Wallick, Littlestown R. 2; the paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Emmanuel S. Wallick, Littlestown R. 2, and two brothers, Earl Wallick, Frederick, Maryland, and Dennis Wallick, Littlestown R. 2.

Funeral services Monday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock with a private service at the W. A. Felser funeral home, Carlisle street, Hanover. His minister, the Rev. Dr. E. M. Sando, pastor of the West Manheim Reformed church, will officiate.

Mr. Grove had been a member of Bethel church, Smith Station.

Interment will be made in Rest Haven cemetery, Hanover.

BEAR WEIGHS 410 POUNDS

Stroudsburg, Pa., Nov. 18 (AP)—The black bear Henry Price killed near Lake Plateau on the first day of the hunting season broke three poles used in trying to lug it a mile from woods to automobile. Price's party of four required five hours to get the 410-pound brute to the car.

NAZIS IMPOSE TREASON LAW; KILL 6 CZECHS

Berlin, Nov. 18 (AP)—Nazi officials, spurred by "rebellious activities" in the protectorate of Bohemia and Moravia, were reported today to have followed up the execution of nine Prague students by clamping German laws against treason on the former Czechoslovak provinces.

The newspaper Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung said Nazi treason law had been imposed "in addition to the old Czech law for defense of the republic."

At the same time, Adolf Hitler's newspaper Voelkischer Beobachter reported that Dr. Emil Hacha, president of the Bohemia-Moravia protectorate, had been taken ill and that his recovery was expected to require considerable time.

Doctor Hacha, 66, was elected president of the shrunken Czechoslovak republic November 30, 1938, to succeed Dr. Eduard Benes, who resigned after the September 29, 1938, Munich conference on partition of his country by Germany.

Berlin officials, meanwhile, remained, tight-lipped concerning the executions, which were disclosed Friday night by D.N.B., official German news agency.

Information obtained from an American official in Prague shortly before telephone communication with the former Czechoslovak capital was cut off indicated that the city was quiet.

Reports in informed Prague circles were to the effect that the executions had followed a raid on an illegal printing establishment in the home of a former Czech official.

D.N.B. said the executions, which were accompanied by numerous arrests, were ordered because of assaults on Germans on October 28 and November 15 by students described as "followers" of Doctor Benes.

Czechs celebrated the 21st anniversary of the founding of their republic on October 28, defying a German ban on public demonstrations. Several clashes with police resulted, and many arrests were made.

Earlier dispatches from Prague Friday had disclosed that the city was being patrolled by members of the black-shirted SS elite guard under command of Sepp Dietrich, trusted friend of Adolf Hitler.

D.N.B. said extraordinary measures taken to preserve order included closing for three years of Czech colleges and academies where leaders in "acts of resistance" were said to have been particularly active.

MAIL STOLEN

Monroe City, Mo., Nov. 18 (AP)—Two masked bandits held up Station Agent A. C. Squires in the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad depot here early today and escaped with seven mail pouches.

Postal Inspector Tom Rhea, of Hannibal, Missouri, said the pouches contained no money, although three were first class mail.

CUT UP

Pittsfield, Mass.—Trying to stab a calf while butchering, Irving Goodman missed and hit another calf. It was his own. Now he's in the hospital with left leg cut to the bone.

GAME GUY

Covington, Va.—A hunter, enthusiastic over killing a five-point buck, hailed a stranger and proudly showed him his kill. The stranger glanced at the buck, looked carefully at the gun, then wrote out a summons charging the hunter's gun contained more shells than the law allowed—and signed himself, Game Warden Perry F. Wright.

MARKSMEN

Oakland, Calif.—Naval aviation reservists believe they've hit tops in novel turkey shoots. With sacks of flour they'll "bomb" targets from 1,000 feet. Forty turkeys are the prizes.

NO FAD

San Diego, Calif.—Three thousand football fans gasped as Orion W. Todd, Jr., stepped on the field as timekeeper. He was in full dress attire. The former Illinois university athlete explained he was at a banquet when called to officiate at the California Poly-San Diego Marines game.

NO HEAD WORK

Omaha, Neb.—Red indeed were the faces of 60 Omaha university students and two professors when they read the school paper. The paper told how they had signed a petition promising to cut off their own heads. The paper's editor, Henrietta Kieser, said the decapitation clause was "buried" in the whereases and wherefors asking two Thanksgiving Day holidays for the students.

LUCKY BREAK

Clarinda, Ia.—Joe Kries didn't go pheasant hunting but he got a bird just the same. Kries was staiding on the sidewalk when a pheasant whizzed by his head and crashed into a store window, breaking its neck. "It has been years since I went pheasant hunting," said Joe as he trudged home for a pheasant dinner.

Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock, a meeting of the eighth grade Girl Reserves; at 4:15 o'clock, a meeting of the freshman Girl Reserves; at 6 o'clock, a meeting of junior Girl Reserves, and at 6:30 o'clock, the gym class.

Thursday the building will be closed in observance of Thanksgiving Day.

Friday afternoon at 3:45 o'clock, a meeting of the seventh grade Forget-me-nots; at 6:30 o'clock, a meeting of a new Girl Reserve club, and at 7:30 o'clock, a meeting of the officers of the county Sunday School association.

Saturday morning the seventh grade girls will salt peanuts in the "Y" kitchen.

FLAPPING COLLAR

Philadelphia, Nov. 18 (AP)—The salient features of orchestra conducting have finally scored against sartorially splendid Leopold Stokowski. His "gates ajar" collar came loose with a pop at a Philadelphia orchestra concert Friday, snapped for five minutes and sent a hummer of consternation through the sedate Academy of Music. But the music flowed on and Stokowski made repairs during intermission. "Nothing like it had been seen in the academy since guest, Conductor Sir Thomas Beecham lost a suspender button at the peak of a crescendo.

48 AMERICAN SHIPS SEARCHED FOR CONTRABAND

Washington, Nov. 18 (AP)—The State department today reported 48 cases in which belligerents had detained American ships for examination of papers or cargo which cleared port before enactment of the new neutrality act.

Of the total detentions, Great Britain was responsible for 33, France for 10, Germany for four and an unidentified vessel for one.

The report included information received by the State department between September 1 and November 17. Forty-four ships were detained, but four of these were stopped twice.

In most cases, the department reported, American ships were not stopped by warships on the high seas but were detained when they docked at belligerent ports.

Time is money in the operation of an ocean-going ship, and American operators are contending that ships have been held for unreasonable long periods. The State department report showed that the average period of detention was eight days.

Flint Held Longest

The longest detention was that of the City of Flint, held for 27 days by a German prize crew until it was released November 4 by Norwegian authorities. The second longest was that of the City of Joliet, a Lykes brothers steamer carrying cotton, lead and copper. It was detained by French authorities September 14 and was held for 22 days.

Shipping companies are lodging their complaints about lengthy detentions with the Maritime commission, and that body is passing them along to the State department for study. No action has been taken thus far.

There have been no formal claims for the loss of cargoes, and authorities here do not yet have accurate information on the total amount of goods seized, nor how many ship operators have been compensated by belligerents. Information at the State department was that Great Britain had compensated some American owners for seized cargoes, however.

The department's report showed a release date for all but one of the detained ships. That was the Laticomo of the Tampa Intercocean Steamship company, which was reported detained upon its arrival Friday at Weymouth, England.

Three instances of American ships being detained and examined by German submarines were reported.

To Re-Route Mail

This government recognizes the right of belligerents to halt neutral ships at sea for examination of their papers and cargoes to determine whether they may be carrying contraband to the enemy. If contraband is found and evidence obtained that it is destined for delivery ultimately to the enemy, the contraband may be seized and unloaded at sea or the vessels taken into port for unloading. Similar treatment is accepted for American ships which sailed before the neutrality law restricted their movements and which entered belligerent ports voluntarily.

The State department reported two seizures by the British of United States mail.

Postal officials reported nearly a month ago that the British, in searching ships for contraband, had taken American mail, censored it and then sent it back to this country. It was announced here that mail to Germany would, in future, be routed through Italy to avoid interference by Britain.

AIR RAID
Run, children run!
Burrow underground.
Quit the morning sun.
Airships flying round!

Run, mothers, run!
Deep in dungeons stay.
Till the danger's done,
Huddle there and pray.

Haste, nurses, haste!
Heed that warning sound!
You've no time to waste!
Scuttle underground.

Cripples, lest you die,
Faster must you crawl!
Soon from hips on high
Awful death will fall.

Parson, flee from prayer!
Shopman, run from trade!
Now the sirens blare,
Signal of a raid!

THEY GOT AWAY

Renovo, Pa., Nov. 18 (AP).—Ward McAllister, the one-time stage and movie star, saw only two bears in his life while bear hunting and killed them both but moaned "I don't have any bear meat and I don't want to see any more bears." His first kill on the opening day of the season was a 300-pounder but another hunter beat him to the carcass. Then he downed another "pretty good-sized" one Friday only to have a game warden come along and declare the kill illegal because he found no tusk. McAllister paid a $25 fine, relinquished his game and went back to operating his night club.

The famous Comstock lode of Nevada has produced nearly $800,000, 000 in gold and silver.

LIGHTS IN THE HEART

I HAVE a few friends whose personalities shine out the moment you meet them. No matter how dark or stormy the day — they remain the same. Their hearts are all lit up from lights that they carry there. I met two such friends today — Eddie and Nellie Guest. Oh, you know them, too! Well, how lucky! And the world is lucky, as well, for their friends are in thousand and lots!

Travelling as I do a great deal, I meet many strangers. I always try to start a conversation, for there is no joy like roaming through the mind of a newly met human being, and catching a fragrant aroma from his thoughts. To this day — though it happened fully 20 years ago — I recall the meeting with a man at breakfast, in a hotel at Jacksonville, Florida, whose personality put a glow of light into the entire room. His hair was white, his figure erect, and his cheeks ruddy with the health of one who had looked on life and found it good. He was perhaps 70 years of age, and yet he still cherished the touch of youth about him. He carried a light in his heart. He looked into our faces at the table and said: "Boys, I am so happy." The memory of that man will forever remain fresh to me.

Years ago the late Walt Mason wrote an inspiring prose-poem with this beginning: "There's a man in the world who is never turned down, wherever he chances to stray; he gets the glad hand in the populous town, or out where the farmers make hay; he's greeted with pleasure on deserts of sand, and deep in the aisles of the woods; wherever he goes there's the welcoming hand."

There are those whom we meet as we journey through life who always give us a thrill — who always radiate an aura of light about them, no matter where they go, or with whom they come in contact. And such people light us up — especially if, at the time, we feel a little dark inside. The lights from their hearts gleam!

Like the light from the towering light-houses that line rugged shores, the lights that people carry in their hearts are beacons to guide others to safety. How little we know what these lights have done to save many a one from life's shipwrecks!

THE CREEPING MAN

By Frances Shelley Wees

YESTERDAY: At the inquest Charlotte Jean denies poisoning the food served. Mrs. Deane reports that Miss Lissey was not herself, because she wore a slip that did not match her dress.

Chapter 37
Testimony
"Thank you, Mrs. Deane." The coroner's eyes were very grave, and his lips firm. "I realize that this is a very important piece of evidence indeed. You offer it to show that Miss Lissey was disturbed in her mind before she came to the party at 14?"

"Yes, Dr. Mayhew."
"Thank you, Mrs. McMain, please." Mrs. McMain in a dark dress that emphasized her pallor, took the chair he indicated. Her hands shook a little, and she laid them together in her lap. Dr. Mayhew looked at her sharply.

"This has been a shock to you, Mrs. McMain?"
"Yes," Her lips trembled. "Miss Lissey was an intimate friend of yours?"
"I knew her—well."
"You were her confidant in her personal affairs, perhaps?"
"To a very slight extent."
The coroner leaned back, and folded his hands together under his chin. "You have not been sleeping very well, Mrs. McMain?"

She moved a little, restlessly. "You would not expect me to, Dr. Mayhew."
"No, no. I should hardly expect you to. Tell me—is there some particular thought in your mind which keeps you from sleeping? Did Miss Lissey tell you something, or did you, perhaps, see something last Sunday afternoon, which is troubling you greatly?"

She put a hand to her eyes suddenly. "No," she faltered. The clock ticked again. "You are certain?"
"—no."
"You mean, you are not certain?"
"Must I tell—here—in front of everyone?"

The coroner glanced around slowly at the tense expectant faces before him. Dr. McMain glared at him openly as if to compel him to allow his wife to go; the coroner's glance passed him blandly, past the Deans, past Michael and Tuck and Bunny, past Charlotte Jean sitting wide-eyed on the edge of her chair—to Jared Devoe, upon whose upper lip the tiny beads of perspiration stood plainly.

"I'm afraid you must, Mrs. McMain."
She sighed. Her husband rose suddenly, went to the water cooler in the corner of the room, and brought her a drink. She took it, and held it in her hands as she talked.

"Sunday afternoon—I was sitting beside her. On the wicker couch. She thought no one was near us. Suddenly she said to me . . . 'If he pays attention to that girl, I'm going to tell her exactly what I know about him. It's enough to—to put him out of the sight of all decent people.'"

She stopped.
"Yes?"
"He heard," she said dully. "He had been right behind us. I saw his eyes."
"To whom are you referring, Mrs. McMain?"

She turned slowly, with an air of dread, and her eyes went down the row of faces until they rested on those bright, staring, brown eyes, on the pallid countenance, on those telltale drops of perspiration. There they rested.
"It was Jared Devoe," she said.
Poison Cabinet
"When was this, Mrs. McMain?"
"We were just beginning our tea."
"That was before Mr. Devoe carried out the tray, then?"
"I do not know. I know nothing else." She leaned wearily against her chair. Her face was very white.

Dr. Mayhew." McMain swallowed hard.
"Do you know, or do you refuse to say?"
McMain looked at Michael fleetingly, but Michael's head was bent. "I do not know," he said.

Higgins was called next. He had dressed himself for the occasion in a suit of brilliant blue, which set off the inadequacies of his figure rather pitifully; but he was chiefly concerned, not with his unaccustomed garments, but with a lock of his hair which persisted in falling into his eyes every few seconds. He brushed it back as he faced the coroner.

"Mr. Higgins, you are the campus gardener, I understand, having charge of all the gardens on the Horse-shoe?"
"Yes, sir."
"You took care of Miss Lissey's garden?"

"Yes, sir. All them gardens, sir."
"So that you were frequently employed where you could observe unobtrusively what might be going on out there?"

"Beg pardon, sir?" Higgins shifted uncomfortably from one foot to the other.

"You often worked where you could see what was going on without anyone noticing you?"
"Yes, sir. Not as 'ow I ever watched 'em, sir."
"No, Mr. Higgins. Of course not. We can understand that you couldn't avoid seeing whatever there was to see, under the circumstances."

"No, sir." Higgins straightened his shoulders, and darted a swift glance at Michael.

"Then, now that we understand each other, let us come to the point. Mr. Higgins, did you ever see anything that would lead you to believe that Miss Lissey had any enemies?"
"Far as that goes," Higgins said lightly, "I shouldn't 'ave been at all surprised if everybody was 'er enemies. She was that snooty and 'sneaky' all the time. Always standin' 'er back 'edge to 'er somethin' wasn't none of 'er business, sir. She was an awful curiosity box, sir."

"You have seen her at such times, Mr. Higgins?"
"Yes, sir. I'd be weedin' of the garden, maybe, when I'd see 'er slippin' 'ere and there listenin'."

She knew as 'ow I'd seen her, too, sir, and she didn't like me a bit. We used to quarrel somethin' awful over her garden and flowers."

"So you were an enemy of hers too, Higgins?"
The pale little eyes widened with alarm. "Oh, no, sir. I never said nothin' like that, I wasn't a henemy, sir. I just didn't like her."

No. 116 — Tombstones

TODAY, just as a change from our Revolutionary series, we are going to give you a column on tombstones. A bold statement such as the above may be rather disappointing, but we ask you to bear with us. There are tombstones and tombstones, you know.

In the year 1820, a marble cutter located in Adams county. From that time until the present, with the exception of a few years, this business, established over a hundred years ago, has remained in the possession of descendants of the man who founded it.

There are, to our knowledge, one hundred and fourteen cemeteries in Adams county. In nearly all of these you will find markers cut by "Meals." We are rather inclined to be curious and so we started to note some of the old and unusual stones cut by this firm. As a result of this investigation we are going to give you a brief sketch of the Meals family and the inscriptions from some of the stones cut by them.

In the Evergreen cemetery we first turn our attention to the old "Reformed Plot" in Area "K." Many of the markers here were cut by "Meals"—but one of the most interesting and beautiful of these marks the grave of our friend Mary Duncan. Visit this plot someday, and study some of the old records set forth on the marble.

In other parts of the local cemetery we give you the inscription, first, from one of the comparatively early "Meals" stones, as follows:—

"In Memory of Catherine Consort of John Ritter was born April 16th, 1775 died August 26th, 1837. Aged 64 years, 4 months, 10 days also"

In Memory of John Ritter born October 8th, 1767 died May 22th, 1844 Aged 76 years, 7 months, 14 days"

Just back from the cemetery entrance is the grave of Charles Edler. The monument marking this site consists of a small, square marble base, surmounted by the figure of a little boy. We consider this one of the most unusual stones to come from the Meals shop. The inscription follows:

"Charles L. Son of J. A. and F. Edler Died November 19, 1885 Aged 6 yrs., 10 mo., 11 dys."

In old Black's graveyard the Boyd stone, among others, was cut by "Meals." The inscription follows:

"Father and Mother Wm. Boyd, Senr. and Elizabeth his wife, also Mary, Benj., and Sam. Children of W. and E. Boyd"

East plaque: "Elizabeth and Jane Martin and George Boyd Grandchildren of W. and E. Boyd." This stone, as you see, bears no dates, but from dates given in the "Boyd Genealogy" we know that the Lewis Meals, stepped into his father's shoes, and carried on the business. Lewis Meals died August 22, 1927, and soon after his death the business was sold to an out-of-town firm. Several years ago when this firm moved their establishment from Gettysburg, a son of Lewis Meals again "took over" and the firm goes on as before.

The above record is one of great achievement, and we only regret that all records kept by the pioneer Meals and his successor have been mislaid or lost. Such records would be of great value historically.

CONN IS VICTOR BY DECISION

New York Nov 18 (AP)—A shanty Irish kid who always says mister and sir to sportswriters an outsize middleweight who weighs 171 pounds in defending his title heavyweight championship—that is Billy Conn the Pittsburgh Adonis you'll soon see bidding money, the heavyweights and eventually against champion Joe Louis.

By winning a round decision over Gus Lesnevich in Madison Square Garden Friday night Conn just about mopped up all the suitable talent in his class and Manager Johnny Riv is remaining in town to talk business with Uncle Mike Jacobs.

They're bound to come upon a possible heavyweight bout with the cycling Bob Pastor sooner or later because Conn himself wants it. Billy swarmed over Lesnevich for a $45,000 near capacity bout Friday night. For three rounds he stalked his foe cautiously taking him with less punches that raised a row, bluish on his young naked chest and had not other effect whatever.

Then he began taking the blows off his darting left jab the hook that time after time pinned the Cliffrace New Jersey fighter to a standstill and the night crew that he or never missed.

In the 11th and the 12th rounds he had Lesnevich dull eyed hand and timing clenching and couldn't finish him. The outcome never was in doubt but it was the ineffectuality of these punches that caused Conn to reward to smile wryly and say:

LIQUOR BOARD WINS RULING

Harrisburg Nov 18 (AP)—A decision by the state Superior court clinched the power of the liquor control board today in enforcing an order prohibiting the sale of liquor by retailers for consumption off the premises.

The decision handed down in Philadelphia Friday reversed rulings of common pleas judges in Erie and Greene counties who had held there was nothing in the liquor control act banning bottle sales by tip rooms and hotels.

Officials of the board administered the state liquor monopoly expressed themselves as pleased by the ruling at the Superior court decision.

A member of the board's legal staff remarked that the board was not at all concerned within the law in prosecuting retailers who sold liquor in closed bottles.

JUDGE IS WITNESS

Pittsburgh Nov 18 (AP)—Common Pleas Judge J. Marshall Thompson knows exactly how it feels to face a jury from the witness stand. While presiding in a trial he left the bench to appear in another court and testify for his wife.

A jury gave Mrs. Thompson a $16,000 judgement against Allegheny county for 10 acres of land taken from her 182 acre estate for a boulevard improvement.

Thompson's testimony was given in a trial in the county court which would bind all lower courts.

The appellate court rejected the defendant's contention that once a proprietor sold the liquor he could not compel the purchaser to drink in the establishment the amount advanced in the Greene county case.

CONN IS VICTOR BY DECISION

New York, Nov. 18 (AP).—A shanty Irish kid who always says mister and sir to sportswriters, an outside middleweight who weighed 171 1/4 pounds in defending his lightweight championship—that is Billy Conn, the Pittsburgh Adonis you'll soon see battling among the heavyweights and eventually against champ Joe Louis.

By winning a 15-round decision over Gus Lesnevich in Madison Square Garden Friday night Conn just about mopped up all the suitable talent in his class and Manager Johnny Ray is remaining in town to talk business with Uncle Mike Jacobs.

They're bound to come upon a possible heavyweight bout with bicycling Bob Pastor sooner or later because Conn himself wants it. Billy swarmed over Lesnevich for a $45,000 near capacity house Friday night. "It was a stinkin' fight. I couldn't get going."
 "But I'll say one thing. He took my punches better than anybody I ever fought. He's just as good as (Mello) Bettina, or any of the rest of the guys I've met. He never hurt me. But I had the feeling I never hurt him either."

LIQUOR BOARD WINS RULING

Harrisburg, Nov. 18 (AP).—A decision by the state Superior court clinched the power of the liquor control board today in enforcing an order prohibiting the sale of liquor by retailers for consumption off the premises.

The decision, handed down in Philadelphia Friday reversed rulings of common pleas judges in Erie and Greene county, who had held there was nothing in the liquor control act banning bottle sales by taprooms and hotels.

Officials of the board, administering the state liquor monopoly, expressed themselves as pleased but not surprised at the Superior court decision.

A member of the board's legal staff remarked that the board was left all along it acted within the law in prosecuting retailers who sold liquor in sealed bottles.

One benefit, he found, is that it binds all lower courts, which previously had held conflicting opinions.

The question first arose when a Greene county judge upheld a tavern keeper cited by the board for license-revocation for letting a buyer take out a bottle. The law gave the board no right to appeal his decision in that case.

However, an Erie county judge who previously had sentenced Wanda Bienkowski, Erie restaurant proprietor, in a criminal prosecution for a similar offense, reversed his decision after learning of the Greene county ruling. His action opened the way for District Attorney Mortimer Graham, of Erie county, to carry an appeal to the Superior court which would bind all lower courts.

The appellate court rejected the Erie defendant's contention that once a proprietor sold the liquor, he could not compel the purchaser to drink in the establishment—the argument advanced in the Greene county case.

JUDGE IS WITNESS

Pittsburgh, Nov. 18 (AP).—Common Pleas Judge A. Marshall Thompson knows exactly how it feels to face a jury from the witness stand. While presiding in a trial, he left the bench to appear in another court and testify for his wife. A jury gave Mrs. Thompson a $16,065 judgement against Allegheny county for 10 acres of land taken from her 182-acre estate for a boulevard improvement.

SNAKE IN SCHOOL

Philadelphia, Nov. 18 (AP).—A shoe box John Uditsky brought to biology class at Benjamin Franklin high school contained a surprise several feet long. It was a boa constrictor fresh off a banana boat from Central America. The boa was transferred hastily to the zoo.

AIR RAID
Run, children, run!
Burrow underground.
Quit the morning sun.
Airships flying round!

Run, mothers, run!
Deep in dungeons stay.
Till the danger's done.
Huddle there and pray.

Haste, nurses, haste!
Heed that warning sound!
You've no time to waste!
Scuttle underground.

Cripples, lest you die,
Faster must you crawl!
Soon from ships on high
Awful death will fall.

Parson, flee from prayer!
Shepherd, run from trade!
Now the sirens blare,
Signal of a raid!

THEY GOT AWAY

Renovo, Pa., Nov. 18 (AP).—Ward McAllister, the one-time stage and movie star, saw only two bears in his life while bear hunting and killed them both but moaned "I don't have any bear meat and I don't want to see any more bears." His first kill on the opening day of the season was a 300-pounder but another hunter beat him to the carcass. Then he downed another "pretty good-sized" one Friday only to have a game warden come along and declare the kill illegal because he found no tusk. McAllister paid a $25 fine, relinquished his game and went back to operating his night club.

vada has produced nearly $800,000,

LIGHTS IN THE HEART

I HAVE a few friends whose personalities shine out the moment you meet them. No matter how dark or stormy the day — they remain the same. Their hearts are all lit up from lights that they carry there.
I met two such friends today — Eddie and Nellie Quest. Oh, you know them, too! Well, how lucky! And the world is lucky, as well, for their friends are in thousands lost!

Travelling as I do a great deal, I meet many strangers. I always try to start a conversation, for there is no joy like roaming through the mind of a newly met human being, and catching a fragrant aroma from his thoughts.

To this day — though it happened fully 20 years ago — I recall the meeting with a man at breakfast, in a hotel at Jacksonville, Florida, whose personality put a glow of light into the entire room. His hair was white, his figure erect, and his cheeks ruddy with the health of one who had looked on life and found it good. He was perhaps 70 years of age, and yet he still cherished the touch of youth about him. He carried a light in his heart. He looked into our faces at the table and said: "Boys, I am so happy." The memory of that man will forever remain fresh to me.

Years ago the late Walt Mason wrote an inspiring prose-poem with this beginning: "There's a man in the world who is never turned down, wherever he chances to stray; he gets the glad hand in the populous town, or out where the farmers make hay; he's greeted with pleasure on deserts of sand, and deep in the aisles of the woods; wherever he goes there's the welcoming hand."

There are those whom we meet as we journey through life who always give us a thrill — who always radiate an aura of light about them, no matter where they go, or with whom they come in contact. And such people light us up — especially if, at the time, we feel a little dark inside.
The lights from their hearts gleam!

Like the light from the towering lighthouses that line rugged shores, the lights that people carry in their hearts are beacons to guide others to safety. How little we know what these lights have done to save many a one from life's shipwrecks!

THE CREEPING MAN

By Frances Shelley Wees

YESTERDAY: At the inquest Charlotte Jean denies poisoning the food served. Mrs. Deane reports that Miss Lissy was not herself, because she wore a slip that did not match her dress.

Chapter 37
Testimony
"Thank you, Mrs. Deane." The coroner's eyes were very grave, and his lips firm. "I realize that this is a very important piece of evidence indeed. You offer it to show that Miss Lissy was disturbed in her mind before she came to the party at all."

"Yes, Dr. Mayhew."
"Thank you, Mrs. McBain, please."
Mrs. McBain in a dark dress that emphasized her pallor, took the chair he indicated. Her hands shook a little, and she laid them together in her lap. Dr. Mayhew looked at her sharply.

"This has been a shock to you, Mrs. McBain?"
"Yes." Her lips trembled.

"Miss Lissy was an intimate friend of yours?"
"I knew her—well."

"You were her confidant in her personal affairs, perhaps?"
"To a very slight extent."

The coroner leaned back, and folded his hands together under his chin. "You have not been sleeping very well, Mrs. McBain?"
"She moved a little, restlessly."
"You would not expect me to, Dr.
Mayhew."

"No, no. I should hardly expect you to. Tell me—here there some particular thought in your mind which keeps you from sleeping?
Did Miss Lissy tell you something, or did you, perhaps, see something last Sunday afternoon, which is troubling you greatly?"

She put a hand to her eyes suddenly. "No," she faltered.
The clock ticked again.
"You are certain?"
"—no."

"You mean, you are not certain?"
"Most I tell—here—in front of everyone?"

The coroner glanced around slowly at the tense expectant faces before him. Dr. McBain glared at him openly as if to compel him to allow his wife to go; the coroner's glance passed him blandly, past the Deans, past Michael and Tuck and Bunny, past Charlotte Jean sitting wide-eyed on the edge of her chair—to Jared Devoe, upon whose upper lip the tiny beads of perspiration stood plainly.

"I'm afraid you must, Mrs. Mc-Bain."
She sighed. Her husband rose suddenly, went to the water cooler in the corner of the room, and brought her a drink. She took it, and held it in her hands as she talked.

"Sunday afternoon—I was sitting beside her. On the wicker couch.
She thought no one was near us.
Suddenly she said to me . . . 'If he pays attention to that girl, I'm going to tell her exactly what I know about him, it's enough to—' to put him out of the sight of all decent people.'"

She stopped.
"Yes?"
"He heard," she said dully. "He had been right behind us. I saw his eyes."

"To whom are you referring, Mrs.
McBain?"
She turned slowly, with an air of dread, and her eyes went down the row of faces until they rested on those bright, staring, brown eyes, on those pallid countenances, on those tell-tale drops of perspiration. There they rested.

"It was Jared Devoe," she said.
Poison Cabinet
"When was this, Mrs. McBain?"
"We were just beginning our tea."
"That was before Mr. Devoe carried out the tray, then?"

"I do not know. I know nothing else." She leaned wearily against her chair. Her face was very white.
"I'm afraid you do, Mrs. McBain."

"I cannot answer that question,
Dr. McBain."

"Did he take his keys with him,
Dr. McBain?"
"I cannot answer that question,
Dr. McBain."

"Then, now that we understand
each other, let us come to the point.
Mr. Higgins, did you ever see anything that would lead you to believe that Miss Lissy had any enemies?"

"Far as that goes," Higgins said
lively, "I shouldn't have been at all surprised if everybody was an enemy. She was that snooty and sneaky all the time. Always standing 'round a 'edge to 'ear something wasn't none of 'er business, sir. She was an awful curious box, sir."

"You have seen her at such times, Mr. Higgins?"
"Yes, sir. I'd be weedin' of the garden, maybe, when I'd see 'er slippin' 'ere and there listenin'." She knew as 'ow I'd seen her, too, sir, and she didn't like me a bit. We used to quarrel somethin' awful over her garden and flowers."

"So you were an enemy of hers, too, Higgins?"
The pale little eyes widened with alarm. "Oh, no, sir. I never said nothin' like that. I wasn't a henemy, sir. I just didn't like her."

Continued Monday

Dr. Mayhew." McBain swallowed hard.

"Do you know, or do you refuse to say?"
McBain looked at Michael fleetingly, but Michael's head was bent.
"I do not know," he said.

Higgins was called next. He had dressed himself for the occasion in a suit of brilliant blue, which set off the inadequacies of his figure rather pitifully; but he was chiefly concerned, not with his uncustomed garments, but with a lock of his hair which persisted in falling into his eyes every few seconds. He brushed it back as he faced the coroner.

"Mr. Higgins, you are the campus gardener, I understand, having charge of all the gardens on the Horseshoe?"

"Yes, sir."
"You took care of Miss Lissy's garden?"

"Yes, sir. All them gardens, sir."
"So that you were frequently employed where you could observe unobtrusively what might be going on out there?"

"Beg pardon, sir?" Higgins shifted uncomfortably from one foot to the other.

"You often worked where you could see what was going on without anyone noticing you?"

"Yes, sir. Not as 'ow I ever watched 'em, sir."

"No, Mr. Higgins. Of course not.
We can understand that you couldn't avoid seeing whatever there was to see, under the circumstances."

"No, sir." Higgins straightened his shoulders, and darted a swift glance at Michael.

"Then, now that we understand
each other, let us come to the point.
Mr. Higgins, did you ever see anything that would lead you to believe that Miss Lissy had any enemies?"

"Far as that goes," Higgins said
lively, "I shouldn't have been at all

HOBBY ROOM

Easton, Pa., Nov. 18 (AP).—A hobby room where imaginative students can experiment on inventions in their spare time has been provided by Lafayette college. Before a student can use the room, however, he must submit his idea to the faculty for approval—or disapproval.
If an experiment is successful, the faculty will help the inventor secure patents.

LEGION MEMBERSHIP UP
Philadelphia, Nov. 18 (AP).—A American Legion membership in Pennsylvania is running 6,300 ahead of this date last year when an all-time high of 74,011 was reached.
announces Joseph I. Finnerty, Eastern vice commander and chairman of the department membership committee. He predicted the total would exceed 80,000 for this year.

"Most deaths of this kind do, Dr.
McBain. Your attitude is that you are unable to understand her suicide, and unwilling to believe it anything more sinister?"

"I cannot conceive of such a possibility for a single moment."
"You know something of poisons, perhaps, Dr. McBain. Can you tell us how the poison which killed Miss Lissy might have been obtained?"

"If it is the one which was named here this afternoon, I may say that it is a common one, and can be obtained at any drug store."

"Without a certificate?"
"I am not sure of that. I am not in the habit of buying poisons in that way, Dr. Mayhew."

"No. Now—here is a point on which we need enlightenment, Dr.
McBain. There are stocks of this poison on hand at the University, are there not?"

"Yes."
"Where are they kept?"
"In a laboratory."
"A laboratory open to the public?"
"No. Certainly not."

"Then, what laboratory? And who would have access to it?"
McBain hesitated. "The poison cabinet is kept—in Edgar Murchi-son's laboratory," he said slowly.

"You are speaking of Professor Murchison now? Who is away at present?"
"Yes."

"You say the poison cabinet. Is it then, kept locked?"
"Yes."

At Enemy, Too
"Dr. McBain," the coroner's eyes were round again. "Who possesses the keys to that cabinet?"
"I do," he said flatly.

"No one else?"
"No one, except Professor Murchison himself."

"Yes. Professor Murchison is away. I understand. Did he take his keys with him?"

"There was more than one person in the row against the wall who held his breath at that question.
But now it was on Duncan Murchison that the attention seemed centered. It was his face that drew all eyes, his deep slow breathing and nervous hands that compelled their interest. Conscious of that interest, he drew himself up in his chair, and locked his hands together.

"Did he take his keys with him,
Dr. McBain?"
"I cannot answer that question,
Dr. McBain."

"Then, now that we understand
each other, let us come to the point.
Mr. Higgins, did you ever see anything that would lead you to believe that Miss Lissy had any enemies?"

Backgrounds of Adams County

By B. F. MACPHERSON

No. 116 — Tombstones

TODAY, just as a change from our Revolutionary series, we are going to give you a column on tombstones. A bold statement such as the above may be rather disappointing, but we ask you to bear with us. There are tombstones and tombstones, you know.

In the year 1820, a marble cutter located in Adams county. From that time until the present; with the exception of a few years, this business, established over a hundred years ago, has remained in the possession of descendants of the man who founded it.

There are, to our knowledge, one hundred and fourteen cemeteries in Adams county. In nearly all of these you will find markers cut by "Meals."
We are rather inclined to be curious and so we started to note some of the old and unusual stones cut by this firm. As a result of this investigation we are going to give you a brief sketch of the Meals' family and the inscriptions from some of the stones cut by them.

In the Evergreen cemetery we first turn our attention to the old "Reformed Plot" in Area "K." Many of the markers here were cut by "Meals," but one of the most interesting and beautiful of these marks the grave of our friend Mary Duncan. Visit this plot someday, and study some of the old records set forth on the marble.

In other parts of the local cemetery we give you the inscription, first, from one of the comparatively early "Meals" stones, as follows:—

"In Memory of Catherine Consort of John Ritter
was born April 16th, 1775

Just back from the cemetery entrance is the grave of Charles Edler. The monument marking this site consists of a small, square marble base, surmounted by the figure of a little boy. We consider this one of the most unusual stones to come from the Meals shop. The inscription follows:

"Charles L.
Son of J. A. and F.
Edler
Died
November 19, 1885
Aged 6 yrs., 10 m., 11 days"

In old Black's graveyard the Boyd stone, among others, was cut by "Meals." The inscription follows:

West plaque:
"Father and Mother
"Wm. Boyd, Senr. and Elizabeth his wife, also Mary, Benj. and Sam.
Children of W. and E.
Boyd

East plaque:
"Elizabeth and Jane Martin and George Boyd Grandchildren
of W. and E. Boyd."

This stone, as you see, bears no dates, but from dates given in the "Boyd Genealogy" we know that the stone must have been erected soon after Gabriel Meals located in this county.

It would be impossible for us to write of all the old and unusual markers cut and erected by this firm. You will find them in nearly all the county graveyards. Why not try a little research work for yourself?

will welcome a gay respite from the pressure of present-day living.

Walter Wanger has produced a diverting story of college love in

"Winter Carnival," starring Ann

Sheridan with Richard Carlson.

The movie has a New England setting for its colorful background, and the Dartmouth yearly sport-social event for the theme because the latter is the nation's one spectacular outdoor fete that is staged entirely by young men full of pep.

Also, this event draws as guests one of the most attractive groups of young ladies assembled. Hundreds of them from throughout the east attend each carnival.

Wintertime and the outdoors have been utilized to catch their zestful spirit as a vehicle for the fast-paced and tumultuous romance in which Miss Sheridan is too attractive and wealthy to have a private life. Her divorce from a titled husband brings notoriety from which she flees, and in her attempt to evade reporters she runs right into the arms of Prof. John Weldon, played by Richard Carlson, whom she jilted during students days when she was crowned queen of the carnival.

Frank Craven, who stars in Paramount's "Our Neighbors —

the Carters," veterans of stage and screen, has never worn makeup in his 38 years behind the footlights and before the camera. He declares he never will might require him to change his regular appearance.

JOYCE Mathews, who plays a featured romantic role in Para-mount's new football comedy, "A Touchdown," with Joe E. Brown and Martha Raye in the stellar roles, probably holds the Hollywood record for the longest and most varied list of beauty titles.

Dave Gould, film dance director, called her "the most beautiful girl

in the United States," LeRoy Prinz, who creates and directs the choreography at Paramount, selected her as "the prettiest chorine." She has been voted "Miss Hollywood," and Artist McClelland Barclay named her the Hollywood starlet with the most beautiful arms.

Miss Mathews is a member of the "Golden Circle, Paramount's

ing groomed for stardom.
